Beef Referendum Passes National Vote: Beef Council Tally

BY LISA RISSER

LITITZ (Lancaster) — Beef and dairy farmers from around the nation have voted overwhelmingly in favor of the beef checkoff, according to an unofficial tally by the National Beef Council and the Beef Checkoff Campaign Committee.

"I don't think there's any question that it passed," commented Robert Coleman, executive director of the Pennsylvania Beef Council. "There is just no official numbers out yet. Pennsylvania was questionable because of some opposition, but by our unofficial count, 63 percent of the producers voted 'yes'. If we had this many (counties) passing, then there's no doubt of it passing in more positive states."

Coleman and the other council staff members called 40 of the state's 67 county Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service offices. They found that approximately two-thirds of the state's dairy and beef farmers voted for the referendum.

"Unofficially, in all but one state, voters were in favor of the referendum," said Don Ricketts, coordinator of the Beef Checkoff Campaign Committee. "That state wasn't in the New England or Mid-Atlantic regions. Our tally also doesn't include Alaska—nothing has come out of that state."

In Lancaster County, however, the results were quite different. Of the 540 eligible votes, 370 were against the referendum, reported Ray Brubaker at the county ASCS office. Two additional votes were challenged, and the voters found ineligible.

"There will be an influx of funds available for research, promotion, and consumer education now," said Dr. John Comerford, Penn State beef specialist. "We at the universities have the facilities and personnel to do the research and educational programs." Comerford hopes to see the funds allocated to universities.

The funds, which haven't been allocated yet, will help finance research on the production of new markets, methods of beef preparation, and genetics.

One beef producer not too pleased with the predicted outcome is Robert L. Frame, owner of Vintage Sales Stable in Paradise. "If it passed, it passed. But how do we know how honest it was?" he questioned. Of particular concern to him was the treatment of the absentee ballots, which were complicated to get and many of which in this county were counted as ineligible because they lacked signatures or were received late.

"I'm never going to change my mind on it for as long as I live," claimed Frame. "They're not out of the woods yet on this because we're still in court on it," he added, referring to his refusal to collect checkoff funds last year. "We're going to court in Philadelphia, and

A happy and safe Memorial Day Weekend to everyone!

Until Thursday the weather around this part of the country was better for ducks than farming. Willis Rohrer, Smoketown, took this picture of a mallard mother and babies that were hatched behind his house by the patio. The drake stayed in the grass field nearby and came to get Mrs. Duck every evening and they went out to dinner together.

Farming went into full gear late this week as fields started to dry after the long period of rainy weather. By late Thursday evening some fields in Lancaster County still had visible wet spots, but other soils dried more rapidly. As the sun went down late Thursday evening, this farmer was working the field with horses and had begun to plant tobacco.

Dairy Industry Versus Dairy Farmers

Cooperatives Split On Pricing Proposals

BY PAT PURCELL

LITITZ (Lancaster) — If the Penn Marva Dairymen Federation has its way, milk producers in the northeastern part of the nation will get more money for their product. By proposing a Class III designation, the federation hopes to move certain products out of the present Class II, into an intermediate class and gain an additional 10 cents per hundredweight above present Class II prices. However, the proposed pricing plan would not operate under the same criteria in use in other Federal Order areas.

"In terms of volume of milk to be included in Class II under our proposal, the amount is substantial and it would mean more money for our producers," said Jim Fraher, Economist with Atlantic Dairy Cooperative, members of PMDF

However, that proposal will meet with some opposition from Eastern Milk Producers and the New England Cooperative. While they are not opposed to the creation of an additional class, they are opposed to the Federation's proposed classification guidelines.

The proposals will be brought before the USDA during hearings scheduled tentatively for sometime in June. The outcome would affect the Federal Orders in the Northeast. Federal Orders in much of the nation utilize a three-class pricing system, but in the Northeast there are only two pricing classes. Class I is the high priced

National Milk Federation Launches Campaign To Stop Price Cut

By Karl Berger
Special Correspondent

The National Milk Producers Federation, the Washington-based lobbyist for most of the nation's dairy cooperatives, has already begun an effort to avert the possibility of another 50-cent reduction in the federal government's dairy support price.

Federation chief executive James Barr and president Tom Camerlo, a Colorado dairy farmer, announced the "Stop the Price Cut" campaign at a May 9 press conference in Washington. The federation is enlisting the support of its member cooperatives and their producers in a "grassroots" lobbying effort targeted at Secretary of Agriculture Richard Lyng.

The Council of Northeast Farmer Cooperatives, which represents six New York and New England-based organizations, and Atlantic Dairy Cooperative, the major Federal Order 4 producer group, already have announced support for the idea of averting the 50-cent cut. However, they may wind up differing from National Milk in the exact means they advocate to accomplish this.

With milk production rising in at least some parts of the country, a national campaign may be the only way for dairy farmers to avoid another round of the falling prices that have befallen them since Lyng implemented a 50-cent support price reduction January 1.

Under the provisions of the 1985 farm bill, the Secretary is required to cut the support price 50 cents at the beginning of each year if, as now seems likely for 1989, U. S. Department of Agriculture officials estimate that the government's purchase of surplus dairy stocks will exceed the 5-billion-pound level. A similar mechanism

RCMA March Premium Set At 17 Cents

BATAVIA, NY — The Regional Cooperative Marketing Agency Inc. recently announced that its 22,000 members will receive a 17-cent premium per hundredweight on all milk produced during March The premiums paid over the 11-state region covered by RCMA total $2.34 million for the month.

The 17-cent premium is up two cents from the amount received by dairy farmers for February milk sales. RCMA has paid more than $13 million since starting premium payments seven months ago.

According to RCMA President William Zuber, the organization is working to increase the amount paid in premiums to off-set continuing declines in federal order

Acres Corn Update: Corn futures today closed lower from 2-1/4 to 4-1/2 cents pressured by long liquidation linked to collapsing soybean prices Trading was choppy thru out the session with buying interest light due to declining basis levels. Support came from news that Mexico had tendered overnight, while the main force driving this market now is the weather News of increased rain chances pressured midday with July closing 4-1/2 lower at $2.14-3/4 after trading to a high of $2 20-1/2 early in the session

Acres Soybean Update: Soybean futures closed sharply lower with losses posted of 21-1/2 to 24 3/4 cents Trading was extremely volatile throughout the session with profits taken and some liquidation in front of the long weekend As word reached the pit of increased rain probability going into the end of the week Technicals turned bearish as the November option stalled at $8 07, forming a double top with activity this afternoon signalling a key reversal November closed out the session 21-1/2 lower at $7 77

Acres Wheat Update: Wheat futures closed from 6-1/4 to 8-1/2 cents lower this afternoon, pressured by spill over weakness from the soybean pit and long liquidation going into the 3 day weekend July closed out the session 6-1/4 lower at $3 41-1/4 after trading to a new contract high of $3 52-1/2 earlier in the session

Acres Cattle Update: Live cattle futures closed lower pressured by continued weakness in the cash fundamentals and positioning in front of the three day weekend Ideas that packers had sufficient inventory added to the selling pressure Dressed beef declines added to the selling pressure Feeders mirrored activity in the live cattle.

DECCOX HALTS COCCIDIOSIS

Q: What Is It?

A: A disease caused by a protozoa (Eimeria) in the digestive tract. Calves ingest eggs which grow in the intestine, damage the lining, reduce nutrient uptake and lower growth.

Q: When Is It Likely To Occur?

A: Year round in 90% of all calves in the subclinical form. 5% of calves show clinical signs usually triggered by some type of stress - weaning, regrouping, poor ventilation, weather change, etc.

Q: What Are The Signs?

A: Rough hair coat, low grade diarrhea, poor doing calves = subclinical. Bloody diarrhea, weak, depressed = clinical.

Q: What Is The Best Control?

A: Prevention with Deccox in 50200 Calf Starter is safe, effective, palatable, convenient and economical.

OPINION

Memorial Day 1988

Memorial Day 1988 is a time for Americans to reflect on the past as we look to the future. It is a time for us to remember and honor those Americans who died in service to our nation. It makes no difference when or where these gallant men and women served, but that they served when called.

Since the beginning of our nation, more than 200 years ago, Americans have answered the call to service. As Americans, we have honored our servicemen and women on Memorial Day since 1868. We know the price of freedom is high and we understand that to honor those who died in service to the country is not only proper, but much deserved. Without the unselfish service of millions of Americans since the Revolutionary War we would not enjoy the freedoms we have today.

Memorial Day is a time to reflect on those freedoms and on the sacrifices of the men and women who fought, and died, to keep the torch of liberty burning brightly. As a nation we asked them to serve. As a nation we must honor their service. As a nation we must remember their sacrifices.

As Americans we want to insure their service does not go unnoticed — to honor these men and women. So on this Memorial Day 1988 we set aside a special time to honor the heroes of our military who sacrificed their lives for the nation.

Our greatest tribute to their service comes when we honor their memory and sacrifices. At the same time we rekindle a sense of pride that, as Americans, we live in the greatest nation on earth.

Memorial Day is the day for all Americans to honor those men and women who paid the ultimate price to preserve our freedom.

To Be Alert For Corn Pests

We are into the season for cutworm damage and this includes the black cutworm. Just a reminder to keep a close check on all corn fields for the next few weeks. Damage symptoms will be plants cut off just above the ground level. The culprit will be hiding in the soil a few inches from the cut plant. We suggest a rescue treatment if 2-3% of the plants are cut and you can find more than 5 larvae in 100 plants. Remember the black cutworm is the one with the granular skin. The control materials listed in the 1987-88 Agronomy Guide include Lorsban or Sevin or Dyfonate or Penncap or Dylox. Be sure to follow all label directions.

To Be Aware Of Fly Build-Up

There is considerable increase in fly population in many of our operations this spring. One of the reasons is the build-up of resistance to materials presently used.

Your fly control program should integrate several different control techniques and insecticides, if you are going to be successful. Flies will become resistant to a particular insecticide if exposed to the same material several times in succession. Resistance to the synthetic pyrethroids has been evident for several years. Some of our poultry producers have found that flies are more tolerant to Larvadex than they were a year or two ago. For best results, use a wide variety of insecticide formulations (space sprays, mist sprays, baits, residual sprays, etc.) and different classes of insecticides (synthetic pyrethroids, carbonates and organophosphates). In fact Dr. Clarence Collison, Entomologist at Penn State, suggests that if you have not used a material for 2 or 3 years, you may want to give it a try again.

In addition to using appropriate insecticides when necessary, it is important to develop an effective manure management program to keep the number of fly breeding areas down to a minimum.

To Clip Pastures

Mowing permanent pastures at this time of year is a very good idea. Many of the plants will be heading out and some will go to seed; this means that the plants should be mowed. This practice will help control weeds and encourage new growth of grass.

Livestock will consume the dry clippings. Pastures should be clipped several times during the season. In addition, the clipped area will look much better to the general public as they travel through the county.

To Be Serious About Johnes

Much has been written and said about Johnes recently. Dairy Agent Glenn Shirk says it is a disease that dairymen should take seriously. It is known that older, infected cattle can shed the organism in their feces and that young cattle can become infected by consuming contaminated manure. More recently, it has been discovered that the Johnes organism might be able to cross the cow's placenta and infects her unborn calf. The organism can also persist in the soil, but some workers believe the survival rate is reduced when soils are limed to a pH of 7.2 or above.

To help reduce the risk of spreading Johnes: 1.) Separate calves from their dams at birth and don't allow the calf to nurse, 2.) Provide a clean maternity area, 3.) House calves in individual pens, away from older cattle, protected from drainage and manures from older cattle, 4.) Keep the calf area well limed, 5.) Don't graze heifers on pasture infected by cows, 6.) Avoid forages that have been topdressed with manure from Johnes cattle, 7.) Have all visitors wash boots between farm visits, 8.) Keep visitors out of feed alleys and feed rooms and locate the breeding charts someplace other than in the feed alley, 9.) Raise your own replacements and if you purchase cattle, including recipient heifers, purchase from Johnes-free herds - easier said than done, 10.) Test suspicious cattle and cull positive animals and possibly their offspring too. The new, quick blood tests, in spite of their higher error rate, may have some value in helping to detect Johnes cattle. Consult your Veterinarian for advice on testing, culling and vaccinating.

Background Scripture: Hebrews 13.

Devotional Reading: 1 Peter 4:7-11.

The other day I had to pay a brief visit to the local Texas Parole Board office. The waiting room was overcrowded with people, mostly young men, with hopelessness written across their faces. The parole officers and clerical staff were harried and overworked. There was a grim atmosphere hanging over this office like a dark grey cloud.

"Is it always like this?" I asked an officer. "No," he replied, "sometimes it's worse." He went on to tell me that, because the jails are overcrowded, non-violent prisoners were being released to the Parole Board in overwhelming numbers. "The halfway houses are full," he said, "most of these people have nowhere to go when they get out and they can't get jobs. If they do and their employer learns that they've done time, they'll probably be fired."

BACK IN JAIL

I came away feeling overwhelmed by their hopelessness. Soon, many of them will have given up their brief experiments with "going straight" and find themselves back in jail. This will occasion more newspaper stories on "rampant crime" and public outcries against "the criminal element."

If, at this moment, you are thinking that this is simply a secular social problem and not a matter for Christian faith, let the writer of Hebrews remind you about the Christian's responsibility to the "misfits" of society: "Do not neglect to show hospitality . . . remember those who are in prison, as though in prison with them; and those who are ill-treated" (13:2,3). He goes on to say: "Do not neglect to do good and to share what you have, for such sacrifices are pleasing to God" (13:16).

IF WE BELIEVE

There are lots of people in desperate need today, but in this brief column I want to concentrate upon the prisoners in and out of our jails. There is probably no field of human need and opportunity for Christian witness and service so generally ignored by the Christian churches. A few churches here and there have Sunday services in local jails and occasionally there is a Bible class offered. There is also Charles Coulson's prison ministry. But that is about all and it is a pitifully small drop in a very, very great ocean of human need.

Is there nothing that Christians can do to help solve these problems? My own observation is that there is a great deal that the churches and individual Christians could do — if we really believed in the transforming power of the Gospel of Jesus Christ. But, for the most part, we're not even trying. Providing Bibles and worship services for prisoners is fine, but it means little if we cannot give these people some support when they get out. Churches could start halfway houses, provide counselling, and try to help parolees find work and perhaps even train for a new vocation. Churches might sponsor parolees in much the same way that we sponsored refugees from Viet Nam and Central America.

And that's just for starters.

The writer of Hebrews says that in ministering to strangers, some Christians "have entertained angels unawares" (13:2). There are a lot of potential "angels unawares" waiting for you and me behind the bars of your local prison and in the waiting room of your closest parole office.

NEWS FROM REGIONAL COOPERATIVE MARKETING AGENCY INC RCMA

PERRY, N.Y. — Edgar A. King, manager of cooperative development and public relations with the Regional Cooperative Marketing Agency Inc., was honored May 14 for outstanding service by the New York State Chapter of Future Farmers of America.

The presentation took place at the Perry Central School as part of a statewide convention of FFA members and faculty advisors. King was singled out for his continued active support of vocational agriculture programs in the state's public high schools.

King, who lives on his family's dairy farm in Schuylerville, N.Y., has four sons who have been active members of FFA.

"FFA provides an exceptional training ground for future farm leaders. The future success of our agriculture economy depends greatly on current FFA members. I'm very proud to receive this honor," King said.

Beef Preview And Jackpot Show Set

BY BETH GRAY
Bedford Co. Correspondent

BEDFORD — Four-H Club and FFA members from across Pennsylvania and Maryland are being invited to compete in the Beef Preview and Jackpot Show at the fairgrounds here June 25. Top honors will include $500 for grand champion steer and $150 for grand champion heifer.

Previously aimed at youths from the six-county central Pennsylvania area, the show "is really trying to enlarge this year," stressed Bedford County Agent Susan Fox. Last year's event drew 75 competitors. C. J. Furlong of Alum Bank RD 1 is chairman, with assistance from county 4-H leaders and FFA advisors.

Steers will be divided into classes according to hip height. Judging will be based on the prospective outcome of the steers at market readiness. The grand champion will receive, in addition to $500, a trophy; the reserve champion will be awarded $250 and a trophy. Five placings in each class will receive cash prizes.

The female show will be judged by breed, with age classes designated if sufficient numbers are entered, Fox said. The reserve champion female will be awarded $125.

Animals may be taken to the fairgrounds between 2 p.m. June 24 and 8 a.m. June 25. A clipping and fitting demonstration will be staged June 24 at 7 p.m. A dance for participants will follow in the 4-H Building on the grounds.

Cattle will be processed after 8 a.m. on June 25, with judging of females to begin at 12:30 p.m., followed by steer judging, then a fitting and showmanship contest.

Prizes are being funded by donations and a $15 per head entry fee. Entries, which must be submitted by June 15, may be obtained by contacting the Bedford County Cooperative Extension Service, Courthouse Annex, Bedford, PA 15559; C. J. Furlong, RD 1, Alum Bank, PA 15521, or David Miller, RD 2, Bedford, PA 15522.

How To Keep Cows Cool When The Temperature Goes Up —

BY GEORGE F.W. HAENLEIN
Extension Dairy Specialist
University of Delaware

NEWARK, De. — Hot weather will be here soon and with it the problems it causes our dairy cows — less feed intake and fewer estrus signs (at least during the day), lower milk production and lower farm profits.

For years we've talked about the advantages of shade trees in the pasture and fans in the barn. New research in Arizona and Florida with implanted thermometers shows that much more than providing shade trees and a few fans needs to be done to reduce the bad effects of heat stress on our cows.

When it gets about 78 degrees F in the barn or shed, cows begin to experience heat stress and milk output drops. Usually this temperature is reached in the barn before the outside temperature gets that high. We don't need to wait for 90 degree F days for production to suffer.

On our recent Delaware-Georgia dairy Extension tour we saw several interesting new developments in ways to cool cows more effectively.

Fan ventilation is of limited value because it can't lower the temperature inside a barn or shed below that of the surrounding air, although the so-called wind-chill effect does provide some relief. Actual air temperature reduction can be achieved either with refrigerated air conditioning, which is usually too expensive to use on our cows, or with evaporative cooling.

What we saw in action in northern Florida on our May tour was evaporative cooling plus fan plus shade applied to dairy herd management on a large scale. Some of these large herds averaged 60 pounds of milk per cow per day. So, does this kind of cooling system pay?

A typical installation consisted of overhead sprinklers, misters or foggers plus many large fans tilted to blow a breeze over the cows' backs, plus large sheets of black nursery house netting tied over the entire feeding, loafing and sleeping areas. We were told that this system would pay for itself in a year if it boosted milk production by as little as five pounds per cow per day for between 100 to 150 days.

This new evaporative cooling system involves wetting down the cows with overhead misters, foggers or sprinklers on a timer schedule of so many times per hour and using the fans to force air onto the wet cows. The fans cause the sprinkler water to evaporate, thus cooling the cows to below the outside temperature. The shade provided by the netting enhances the cooling effect. At the same time, the misters or foggers cool the surrounding air so that as the cows inhale it they lose additional body heat through their lungs.

Apparently, sprinklers plus fans are best. We were told that at least one 36-inch fan is needed for every 40 cows to produce a desired air speed of 400 to 600 feet per minute. Additional fans are necessary in holding areas where cows are grouped close together, and an extra fan is needed for every 30-feet distance.

The University of Florida research project that we saw used PVC pipe mounted under barn roofs just under the fans — about 8 feet high — with 0.22 inch orifice plastic nozzles. The sprinklers operated at 10 psi pressure for 1.5 minutes on 15-minute cycles, with the ½ horsepower 36-inch fans blowing for 13.5 minutes. Sprinklers applied 0.05 inch rainfall equivalent during each sprinkling. Total installation costs varied from $34 to $165 per cow. Sixty gallons of water per cow were used on days above 78 degrees F. Electrical consumption was 1.8 kilowatt hour per cow per day.

In parts of Florida this system has to operate for eight months, and payback was 1.4 years for the $165 per cow installation. Feed consumption increased significantly and producers averaged $0.69 extra milk income per cow per day.

Anyone with questions or wishing more details should contact Dr. George Haenlein at the University of Delaware (302-451-2522).

Scholarships For Home Economic Students

FLEMINGTON, NJ — Johanna Farms, Queens Farms and Tuscan Dairy Farms have announced the establishment of a scholarship fund for the children and grandchildren of suppliers.

Each year, $1,000 each will be awarded to 10 college-bound high school seniors planning majors in dairy production, technology or science. Any son, daughter or grandchild of a dairy farmer selling milk to Johannan, Tuscan or Queens Farms is eligible.

All entrants must write an essay answering the question "What do you see as the future of the dairy industry in the United States?" Essays should be double-spaced and no longer than 1,000 words. Evaluation will be by an independent panel of judges.

"We're eager to learn what the next generation of dairy farmers sees when it looks to the future," commented Kurt Goldman, president of Johanna Farms. "We also want to do our part to encourage the children of our suppliers to stay with the family business, and to continue doing business with us during the years to come."

For applications, farmers should ask their field representative or send their name and address to Johanna Farms Scholarship Program, Johanna Farms, Inc., Flemington, N.J. 08822. The deadline for entries is June 15, 1988.

prices. "We're losing hundreds of dairy farmers each year who can no longer make a living. They see their income drop, while their costs increase. No business can afford to operate under those conditions for a prolonged period," he said.

Recently released figures compiled by Walter Wasserman of the Cooperative Extension Association of Cayuga County and Cornell University show that from March 1987 to March 1988 approximately 1,400 Northeastern dairy farms stopped production. Agriculture observers believe that the farm economic situation during 1988 is expected to be far worse.

Wasserman's report also shows that the blend price paid to farmers in the region dropped 5-6 percent, or as much as 68-cents per hundredweight.

"The RCMA premium is certainly not making up for the entire decline in farm income, but we are working on increasing premiums. Additionally, RCMA's leadership in paying premiums has caused many private dealers to pay premiums of their own directly to producers which are helping to lessen the impact of falling prices," Zuber said.

RCMA is currently involved in a major membership drive so that the organization can more effectively bargain for their farm prices. Zuber noted that during April 49 new members joined RCMA. "The key to the future is signing-up every milk producer in the Northeast. Farmers have to stick together," he said.

Chemical Conditioners For Hay Yields Mixed Results

BY ROBERT E. LEIBY
AND DAVID L. DUNBAR
Lehigh Co. Cooperative
Extension Office

ALLENTOWN (Lehigh) — A recent development in hay technology involves the use of chemicals which increase the drying rate of cut forage. If we reduce drying time, we increase our chances of getting hay baled before it rains.

Several products have appeared on the market and have been referred to as desiccants, drying agents, and/or chemical conditioners. These should be distinguished from chemical hay preservatives that are used on high moisture hay at time of baling. What are some of the basic chemicals used in these desiccant formulations? The original work in Australia used straight potassium carbonate solution. In the United State, some chemical formulations include mixtures of potassium and sodium carbonate. Some have also added sodium silicate, methyl ester of fats, vegetable oils and animal fat.

What is most effective? Tests conducted at Michigan State University have shown that potassium carbonate and/or sodium carbonate solution worked as well as any in improving field drying.

Researchers at Maryland, Michigan and New Hampshire all agree that drying agents work best for second and third cuttings and are least effective at the first cut or an autumn cut. Generally, at the first cut, there is more forage to dry off, soil moisture is higher, air temperatures are lower and relative humidity is higher than during second and third cuts.

Chemical conditioners work well on legumes, such as alfalfa, birdsfoot trefoil and red clover, but they are not effective on grasses. In a legume-grass mixture, they appear to work well because the drying rate of the legume becomes about the same as that of the grass.

What is the rate of application? Depending on the product used, it will vary from about 5.7 to 8.0 pounds per ton of hay equivalent. For most harvests, this will mean a chemical cost of $5.00 to $10.00 per ton of hay.

Normally, the chemical is applied at the mower-conditioner. There are two techniques commonly used. With the first, a spray boom is mounted ahead of the reel and a push bar lays the crop over allowing the spray to contact the stems. The other method is to mount the spray nozzles behind the reel but in front of the rolls.

Michigan State University has reported that the more solution applied, the faster the drying. They recommend at least 30 gallons of solution per acre for good coverage for second and third cut alfalfa. New Hampshire reported that 15 to 20 gallons per ton of hay is effective. Attempts to use lower rates of carrier have given mixed results.

At these high carrier rates are the major limiting factor of this technology. Refilling tanks and adding chemicals will use up important time that should be used mowing. Therefore, a hay producer will need a nurse tank, filled with enough pre-mixed solution to cover the area he intends to cut that day, mounted on a truck and equipped with a fast delivery gasoline-driven pump in order to maintain high cutting time efficiency. Also, these solutions do require good agitation to keep the chemical from settling in the tank. It is best to add the chemical (a dry powder) slowly into a half-filled tank under constant agitation.

What is the future with hay chemical drying agnets? There is potential for the technology, especially for cash crop producers and farmers who are limited to hay systems as their only means of forage preservation. As of now, these products are an addition to and not a substitute for our conventional hay making techniques.

Eastern Shell Egg School Next Week

OCEAN CITY, MD — The Maryland Department of Agriculture (MDA) will be hosting the internationally respected 57th Eastern Shell Egg Quality School on June 5-9 at the Carousel Hotel in Ocean City, Maryland.

Originated by the Northeastern Poultry Producers Council, this year's conference is sponsored by Southern United Egg Producers. It is co-sponsored and staffed by the United States Department of Agriculture; the state departments of Agriculture of Maryland and Virginia, and poultry science departments of the University of Maryland, North Carolina State University, University of Georgia, and Virginia Tech.

Thomas O. Meredith, Jr., Administrator of MDA's Egg Inspection program, will head the laboratory section, where students receive instruction in the actual handling of eggs, learning candling techniques, how to assess shell quality and interior egg quality, how to determine correct weights and sizes, and how to use Haugh units to determine egg freshness.

MDA Egg Inspectors Deanna Baldwin, Margaret Benbow, Jim Greer, James Johnson and Ron Rogers have been selected as instructors. Each will be assigned a small group of students who will receive the individualized instruction which has proven so successful in past schools.

Rated the best egg quality school in the United States, this session attracts foreign students — for example, two years ago the Egg and Poultry Administrator from the Danish Ministry of Agriculture completed this intensive course.

"We feel privileged to be hosting this important study session," said Secretary of Agriculture Wayne A. Cawley, Jr., "and are happy to be able to provide the help of our outstanding staff and the hospitality of the Eastern Shore."

For further information contact Thomas O. Meredith, Maryland Department of Agriculture, (301) 841-5770.

Dairy Industry Versus Dairy Farmers

category which includes fluid whole milk and generally includes related fluid products. Class II is a lower priced category which includes all milk used for manufacturing purposes.

In those other Federal Order areas with a Class III, the third class is used for all the "hard" manufactured products and usually receives the lowest price which includes all cheeses (other than cottage), butter, nonfat dry milk powder, and the other products not included in Classes I and II.

Under the Federation's proposal, they are requesting that most cheeses such as the Swiss and Italian cheeses would be included in the Class II which would net a higher price for producers. Class III would include just those residual products which are eligible for purchase by the Credit Commodity Corporation.

"The major thrust of our proposal is that the hard storable products which are used to balance the rest of the market are of the lower value. And those products in between those are companion products to Class I and are of greater value and our producers should get a better price for milk used for those products," explained Fraher.

Apparently, getting more money for the dairy farmer may not always be in the dairy farmer's best interest. Sounds confusing and complicated and it is. The business of dairying extends far beyond the gate at the end of the farm lane. Getting the milk to market is just the beginning of marketing milk, a complex issue affecting the entire dairy industry.

According to Jack Kirkland from the Penn State University Department of Agricultural Economics, cheeses are the hottest selling item on the market now and farmers should get a premium for the milk being manufactured into cheese. However, Kirkland emphasized a price increase for cheese manufacturers in the northeast area may have a negative effect. The bottom line here is what is best for the industry as a whole.

"We get so concerned about helping the farmer we forget the manufacturing side of the dairy industry is very delicately balanced," explained Kirkland. "The cheese market is a nationally competitive market and we have to be really careful. One change may benefit one segment of the industry, but it's like throwing a rock into a pond. There's a ripple effect."

Kirkland added that a price increase to the Northeast cheese manufacturers, of which many are already paying a premium to milk producers on percent milk solids, may force some of them out of business. Also, the higher processing costs could allow cheese manufacturers from the Midwest to successfully compete in the Northeast market, according to Kirkland.

"This is not a black and white issue. There are a lot of grays here," he added.

Eastern Milk Producers Cooperative will urge the USDA to create Class III under the same guidelines which are used for other federal orders for Class III throughout the country. Under their proposal milk used to produce cheeses would fall into the lower pricing category of Class III.

"Their (Penn Marva) proposal would place (Northeast) cheese manufacturers at a disadvantage. By including those cheeses in Class II, cheese manufacturers would have to pay more for the milk in those areas than other cheese manufacturers would have to pay in other areas of the country," explained Joe Mathis, Economist for EMPC.

"This is like shooting yourself in the foot as far as I'm concerned. It is particularly important for the manufacturing side of the business to remain competitive in the national market. The cheese market is not a regional market the way the fluid milk market is. It is a national marketplace and the cheese manufacturers need to stay competitive," said Mathis.

Midwest cheese manufacturers already enjoy the advantage of lower production costs compared to that of their Northeastern counterparts. A 10-cent per hundredweight increase would eat away at the Northeasterners' profit margin. However, Kirkland pointed out that perhaps transportation costs to ship product to the Northeast may discourage Midwest manufacturers from cashing in on their advantage.

"I'd have to see the numbers and so will the USDA before they make any decisions," said Kirkland.

Although the hearings are scheduled to begin in June, there will be 67 proposed amendments to the Federal Orders before the USDA. Fraher predicted it may be another year before dairymen see the effects in their milk checks.

Northeast Forage-Quality Contest Scheduled

ITHACA, NY — If your hay crop looks like a winner this year, the Northeast Forage Quality Contest is for you. The contest is co-sponsored by Northeast DHIA, "New York Holstein News," "The Northeast Improver," and both the New York and the Pennsylvania Forage and Grasslands Councils. The purpose of the contest is to promote top-quality forage production, and to reward outstanding forage management.

Every farmer in the 12 Northeast states is eligible. States included are New York, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Vermont, New Hampshire, Maine, Connecticut, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Maryland, West Virginia, and New Jersey.

Forage samples will be analyzed at the Northeast DHIA Forage Lab. Judging will be based on NIR analysis and a computer ration-balancing program that assesses the forage's ability to support a high level of milk production when fed as the sole forage source.

Entry of your hay or haylage sample is easy. For hay samples, sample 20 bales with a hay probe, mix the core samples in a plastic bucket, and send a representative subsample to the DHI forage lab. Don't forget to save two bales of hay for the final round of judging. Your haylage sample should be from freshly unloaded material. Take several samples from the feed bunk and the feed cart. Again, send a representative subsample. Refrigerate or freeze 25 pounds of haylage for the final round. The entry form must be completed and verified by a DHI supervisor or personnel in agribusiness or extension. The entry fee is only $10.

Entry forms and rules are available through Northeast DHIA. Call toll-free 1 800/334-2297 in New York, 1 800/255-5344 in New England (except New York) or write to: Northeast DHIA, Forage Quality Contest, 730 Warren Road, Ithaca, NY 14850.

The first 50 entrants will receive a coupon from Dupont Co. for a free NIR forage analysis at the Northeast DHIA Forage Lab. So, enter your prize hay or haylage sample today and win big. You'll not only gain recognition as one of the best forage growers in the Northeast but, you'll also win big prizes. This year's grand prize winner will take home a Class Model 44S Round Baler featuring the Rollatex Wrapping System. Finalists will receive products and services from more than 25 agribusiness sponsors.

Fight Rising Farm Costs

LEESPORT (Berks) — After three years of decline, USDA and other farm economists predict that farm production costs will rise by three to five percent this year. Increases will be in farm supplies such as fertilizer, herbicides, pesticides, and fuel.

The use of sound soil and water conservation practices can decrease the use of these products and result in lower operating costs, reports Robert Heidecker, resource conservationist for the USDA Soil Conservation Service in Harrisburg.

Heidecker cited examples: Farmers should test both soil and manure before applying fertilizer. In many cases, the nutrient needs of the growing crops are either totally or partially available in the soil, thus decreasing or eliminating the need for fertilizer. Numerous farmers report savings of $40 or more per acre through a nutrient-management program which includes both soil and manure testing.

Soil Conservationists also are recommending minimum applications of farm chemicals for weed and insect control. "Sometimes less than the recommended amount of herbicide will do the job," added Heidecker. "A little experimenting on application rates can pay off in money savings."

SCS recommends crop-management associations as a good way to improve production efficiency.

Lowering applications of fertilizer, herbicides and pesticides can pay off in better quality ground and surface water.

Farmers can save fuel by using one of several methods of conservation tillage. Fuel savings are greatest with no-till planting which eliminates several trips over the field in planting a crop.

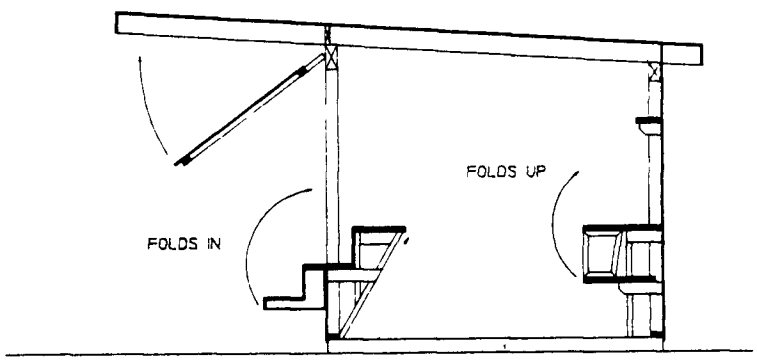
Farm equipment operation costs decrease when all tillage, planting and harvesting are done on the contour. Tractors and other motorized farm equipment operate more efficiently on the level as compared to up and down hill.

"It is possible to offset rising farm costs through conservation farming," commented Heidecker. Additional information on conservation cost savings is available from the USDA Soil Conservation Service office serving your county.

Roadside Market Plan Available

NEWARK, DE — Delaware Cooperative Extension is offering a plan for an 8' x 16' all-weather roadside stand, which may suit the needs of roadside marketers. The design, Plan No. 5983, was prepared by the U.S. Department of Agriculture Plan Service.

"The building is of pole frame and beam construction with a shed roof and should present no problems to someone with a little experience in construction and blueprint reading," says Dr. Jim Scarborough, University of Delaware Extension agricultural engineer. "The flooring is concrete and can be done by a concrete contractor if you don't wish to tackle this part of the project yourself."



8' X 16' ROADSIDE MARKET

A hinged front cover and fold-in display stands make it possible to completely secure this roadside stand at the end of a day. Plans for the easy-to-build stand are available from Delaware Cooperative Extension.

The building can be sided with vertical siding or exterior plywood. Using a textured plywood such as T111 will give a nice appearance to the finished structure, Scarborough says. A hinged front cover and fold-in display stands make it possible to completely secure the building at the end of the day. The lower display stand on the back wall folds up to increase working space inside the building when necessary.

Blueprints of this two-sheet plan are available for $1 and can be ordered from: Extension Agricultural Engineer - Plan Service, 058 Townsend Hall, Newark, DE 19717-1303.

Make checks payable to the University of Delaware and be sure to specify plan No. 5983, Roadside Stand.

Beef Referendum

if a judge sees it right, he'll see that it's unconstitutional. We're (the farmers) the fifth person in line paying for things for the four people ahead of us, and that's unconstitutional. We're going to the Supreme Court if we have to because it's wrong, it's unconstitutional."

The official results will be announced on Friday afternoon by U.S. Secretary of Agriculture Richard Lyng.

In the 1977 vote, which required a two-thirds majority to pass, 57 percent of voters were in favor of the referendum, according to Ricketts. In 1988 only 34 percent of voters cast a 'yes' vote.

Farmers Are Uniting To Draft Dairy Legislation

BOONVILLE, NY — Several farm organizations are urging dairymen to become involved in developing new federal dairy policy. "With auctions filling our newspapers, it is obvious that dairy farmers are enduring financial difficulties beyond any normal or reasonable expectations," said Bruce Krug of Constableville, who has just attended a National Farmers Union Dairy Committee meeting in Washington, DC.

"Another 50¢ per cwt. cut in the milk support price is a virtual certainty this coming January 1, while the impact of the last cut has not yet been fully felt. This means an uncertain future for farmers at best." There is one certainty, he went on to explain: There will be a new farm bill after the 1985 Farm Bill runs out in 1990.

According to Krug, "Whether or not this bill is good for family farmers or good for processors will depend upon farmers becoming involved in development of new legislation."

The New York Farmers Union, The Pennsylvania Farmers Union, the New York State Farm Alliance, the Committee on Rural Affairs, Rural Vermont and the National Save the Family Farm Coalition have all been involved in the effort to draft new legislation as an alternative to continued support price cuts.

Krug warned that if the recommendations of two recent studies are put into effect, the result for dairy farmers will be disastrous. The two reports were issued by the National Commission on Dairy Policy and the General Accounting Office. "Both reports recommend a pricing structure which virtually guarantees the demise of the family dairy farm."

"Each report gears pricing towards providing processors with cheap raw product, under the mistaken assumption that low farm prices are passed on to consumers," Krug stated. David Dyer, Executive Director of the NCDP, came under severe criticism for the report from members of the NFU Dairy Council at a recent meeting in Washington. A comparison of the price of manufactured products versus the milk price received by farmers over the past five years proves that lower farm prices are not passed on to consumers.

However, both studies contain statements which farmers should find useful in developing farmer oriented dairy policy. The NCDP report states that as a last resort, a mandatory two-tier pricing system could be installed to keep production in line with demand. Krug notes this, "seems to be an admission that mandatory production controls would work in controlling production and maintaining prices."

The GAO report is even more favorable to this point of view. According to the GAO, "In both the short and long term, marketing quotas would decrease national production. The pressures for increased production, brought on by higher prices, would be restrained by the quota level that would otherwise exist." The GAO report points out that mandatory production controls would be effective in controlling production and are the only option that would increase producer income!

Recently, the PFU, NYSFA, NYFU and CORA, along with the NSFFC have embarked on a campaign to involve dairy farmers in developing new dairy policy. This campaign has thus far developed a discussion draft of a bill that contains regional supply management with cost of production pricing. Farmers from all across America have had input into this bill which returns a fair pricing structure to dairy farmers.

Bruce Krug emphasized that it is important for local farmers to become involved with this discussion. "We need to develop a policy which benefits farmers and the rural economy as well. If we farmers fail to do so, the probability of another processor oriented farm bill will increase dramatically, with the resulting hardships and empty barns that a 'market oriented' policy guarantees."

Anyone wishing more information should contact Bruce Krug at 315/397-2523 or Arden Tewksbury at 717/833-5776.

Sonnen Receives FFA Scholarship

Rebecca Sonnen of the Conrad Weiser FFA Chapter has been named the recipient of a $500. national scholarship sponsored by Jacques Seed Company as a special project of the National FFA Foundation. The scholarship will be applied toward further education for Rebecca Sonnen at the institution of her choice.

Sonnen, daughter of Paul and Marilyn Sonnen of Richland received notice of the scholarship after a national FFA panel judged her application among the best in the nation. Judging criteria included evaluation of Rebecca's Supervised Occupational Experience (SOE) program in high school agriculture, FFA activities, school and community involvement, high school grades and career plans. Rebecca's FFA advisor is Mr. Stephen Miller.

This is the fifth year such scholarships have been made available through the FFA Foundation by business and industdry. The program has experienced rapid growth in the past few years and FFA leaders believe it will continue to expand.

"The first year of the program we awarded 16 scholarships totaling $14,500. This year, we'll present 210 students with scholarships worth more than $200,000," said Bernie Staller, executive director of the National FFA Foundation.

Rebecca Sonnen

"We need to make sure FFA members who want to further their education to attain specific agricultural career goals have an opportunity to do so," said Coleman Harris, national FFA executive secretary. "Tomorrow's agriculture is dependent upon young people who have the education and training to keep American agriculture the most productive in the world."

Dr. Larry Case, national FFA advisor, added, "The agricuiltural industry is becoming increasingly specialized. Of the 48,000 new job openings in agriculture annually, more than 75% require training past high school. FFA and the high school agriculture program are preparing students for further training in agriscience, business, marketing and a host of other areas."

The FFA is an organization of students preparing for careers in the agricultural industry. FFA activities and award programs complement instruction in high school agriculture by giving students practical experience in the application of agricultural skills and knowledge developed in the classroom. A major emphasis of FFA is the development of personal skills and abilities to prepare young people for leadership roles in agricultural careers.

Rebecca is currently a senior at Conrad Weiser High School where she served as president of her FFA chapter and the National Honor Society. She is the current PA Dairy princess.

Rebecca recently placed first in the FFA Regional Public Speaking Contest. She will be competing in the state competition which will be held during FFA Activities Week at Pennsylvania State University June 14, 15 and 16.

After graduation from high school, Rebecca will be attending Pennsylvania State University, University Park, to major in Dairy Production and Agriculture Economics.

It's Apple Thinning Time

APPLE THINNING

We are rapidly approaching the time to apply chemical thinners to apples. On page 16 of the 1988 Penn State Tree Fruit Production Guide is a listing of factors that can affect tree response to chemical thinning.

Take the time to inspect each tree block early to evaluate fruit set. Look at the flowers. If the sepals are reflexing backward or away from a horizontal position, the fruit probably will drop. If the sepals are horizontal or more nearly vertical, the fruit probably will stay on the tree.

Considering this year's weather patterns, pay particular attention to bloom duration. In many instances, blocks set the majority of their fruit within two to three days. Under these conditions you can expect very little difference in fruit size. The size of fruit and its rate of development are the main factors in determining proper timing for application. The following guidelines may be useful in timing applications.

Fruit Diameter	Thinning Response
up to 3/8 inches	fruit too small to be thinned
3/8 to 7/16 inches	maximum thinning response
7/16 to 9/16 inches	sprays only partially effective
over 9/16 inches	fruit too large to be thinned

Another factor to consider is the weather immediately preceding applications. Cloudy, cool weather causes leaves to absorb thinning materials better and leads to greater thinning response.

Many Golden Delicious trees across the state appeared to have a light flower crop this year. On these blocks, expect the fruit to be more difficult to remove.

Sheep Industry Addresses Change

DENVER, CO — "Our appetites are large and our resources are few. The sheep industry needs to pick its fights carefully and target resources in these areas," says Rodger Wasson, ASPC executive director, in his recent report to the ASPC Board of Directors. To keep up with constantly changing needs, the sheep industry is currently shifting into a stage of "Strategic Engagement," according to Wasson.

"It is rare to see an association keep up with changing needs," said Wasson. Growth curves of industries back to the mid 1800's show recurring stages of crisis and growth. Responsible change requires leadership commitment to critically analyze the current situation, anticipate the emerging crisis, openly consider totally new approaches, agree to new direction, then sell the vision. Timing is critical.

When ASPC was created, a promotional strategy dominated. Consumers were influenced with excellent lamb and wood advertising. The results of rising prices put pressure on producers to raise more sheep. "Blueprint for Expansion," a second stage, responded to this need. This stage not only called for expansion but also development of industry strategic plans at the state level. "Higher prices made the U.S. a target for increased imports," says Wasson.

As prices broke, the third stage of stronger marketing efforts went into action. Innovative marketing efforts in both lamb and wool increased demand and provided consumers with uniform quality products. Right on schedule with higher prices came an increased attack from imports and the need to increase production. As a result ASPC expanded its producer services department working with all regions of the country.

Today ASPC has only one director of producer services. Increasing efforts are channeled through state organizations and the National Wool Growers Association.

"This brings us to the current stage, strategic engagement," says Wasson. Whether or not industry organizations ultimately become one, our industry will be pulled into new levels of cooperation, collaboration and consolidation of services. ASPC programs such as contests, cooperative programs and sales incentives get others involved, increasing our industry voice.

Each department at ASPC is knowledgeable of what has worked in the past and what will be most effective in the future.

The vision we develop for our future will drive our strategies. If we are successful at our next change stage of strategic engagement, the industry will prosper and grow. History speaks for itself.

The complete text of Wasson's report is available on request by contacting ASPC Communications Department, 200 Clayton St., Denver, CO 80206, (303) 399-8130.

The American Sheep Producers Council is a producer funded market development organization headquartered in Denver, Colo. The Council conducts advertising, promotional, educational and marketing programs on behalf of the nation's 114,000 sheep producers.

Pigs "Pig Out" To Get Leaner

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Getting more lean pork to the marketplace faster might mean getting pigs to "pig out" more at the feed trough, said a U.S. Department of Agriculture scientist.

"Ordinarily, pigs know when they're full and don't really 'pig out,'" said Jerome C. Pekas, an animal physiologist with USDA's Agricultural Research Service. Pigs produce a natural hormone, called Cholecystokinin or CCK, that tells them when to lay off the feed. But in an initial study, he said, pigs ate more and put on more lean tissue when injected with a compound that immunized them against this hormone.

"The pigs 'thought' they were hungry, so they ate more," Pekas said today in Los Vegas at the 72nd annual meeting of the Federation of American Societies for Experimental Biology.

On average, carcasses of the 12 pigs injected with the new compound contained six pounds more lean meat than 12 control pigs, said Pekas, who did the study with fellow animal physiologists Bruce D. Schanbacher and William E. Trout at the U.S. Meat Animal Research Center in Clay Center, Neb. And, Pekas added, the leaner pigs consumed an average of 22.5 pounds more feed and gained 11 pounds more weight than the control pigs over the 82-day treatment period.

He stressed that the results are preliminary, but is winding up a second study and plans others using larger numbers of pigs.

The new compound, he said, is a harmless decoy that a pig's immune system treats as a foreign invader by developing antibodies to it. And in the study, the antibodies also inactivated the natural CCK hormone, Pekas said.

The scientists injected pigs first at 11 weeks of age, and later gave three booster shots. Pekas said he believes only one booster may eventaully be used.

"Pigs that got the special injections continue to use feed efficiently, digest extra feed, and go to the feed trough more often than animals in the control group," he said.

The new compound consists of a fragment of CCK chemically bonded to a harmless foreign protein, serum globulin, found in human blood. While CCK has 37 amino acids, the fragment has only eight and is called CCK-8. CCK-8 immunization of pigs would require federal approval, he said. USDA scientists are pursuing a patent onusing it to control appetite in animals.

Physiologists first recognized CCK as a hormone that causes the gall bladder in animals and humans to contract. Its effect on appetite regulation became known within the last 10 years, he said.

He envisions the hormone being further studied in human medicine to treat problems caused by low appetite, such as anorexia nervosa, or insatiable appetite, such as obesity.

National Milk Federation

resulted in the January 1 cut and its depressing effect on farm milk prices nationwide.

To head off this possibility, National Milk officials would like to see Lyng implement either another whole herd buyout or diversion program on a temporary basis, something he could do without new legislation from Congress. In the case of a buyout, federation economists figure a program about half the size of the 1986-87 one, which contracted for the removal of 12 billion pounds of productive capacity, would work.

Steve Kerr, the executive director of the Council of Northeast Farmer Cooperatives, agrees with the buyout or diversion approach, but he would like to see such a program implemented with regional concerns in mind. Despite a surplus nationally, milk supplies in the Northeast are tight, he said.

"It is vital," Kerr added, "that any supply control be targeted to the regions which overproduce."

The federation is taking a different tack this year, according to Barr, than it did in 1987, when it unsuccessfully sought congressional action to avert the price cut.

"We just don't think in a short election year, given the, quote, 'controversial' thing we've proposed, that we have a lot of opportunity in the Congress to get legislation in 1988," he said.

Trying to convince Lyng to do something he has consistently said he wouldn't may seem like a long shot, but, publicly at least, NMPF officials are optimistic the Secretary will eventually implement a buyout or diversion.

"Officials in this town have said no before but, through one means or another, have changed their minds," Barr said. "We're hoping that happens now."

The fact that 1988 is shaping up as a presidential election year with a potentially close race does not hurt the federation's chances, Barr added.

In terms of milk production, the trend is already evident. The current USDA forecast for government purchases of surplus butter, powder and cheese in calendar 1988 is 8.6 billion pounds, up substantially from its estimate in December. USDA has not released a long-range forecast, but both the Congressional Budget Office and National Milk are predicting the government will buy 8.0 billion pounds in 1989.

That's 3 billion pounds above the 5-billion-pound trigger level. Without new policy, "there's no doubt . . . that the Secretary's going to make a price cut in 1989," said National Milk economist Mike Brown.

Should it take effect, the reduction would put the government's milk support price at $10.10 a hundredweight, its lowest level since 1979. That's too low, particularly with costs rising, say federation officials, for many producers to continue in business.

"Policy makers can choose to drive dairy farmers out of business through another 50-cent price cut in 1989 or they can choose a positive approach to reducing milk production through a buyout program," Camerlo said.

good thing, even about some things we already know.

One thing I don't recall ever hearing him say, which really should be said; is in regards to raising and lowering the cutting bar on many of the old sickle bar mowing machines. As a young lad, I almost sliced off one of my fingers, and it's a very easy thing to do. All parents of farm children or employers of inexperienced workmen should make them aware of the fact that those knives often move when you raise or lower the bar and a finger in between the guards can very easily be taken off; not a real serious mishap, but quite a handicap too sometimes, especially if it is the index finger or one next to it.

Editor:

I'm submitting a short story that I would like to see printed in your publication. It depicts the futility of pricing a product higher than what the free market calls for. It was written with RCMA in mind, with hopes that supporters of such programs could be made aware of the danger of damaging our market and its integrity.

No doubt this is a controversial issue, but having read your magazine for the past 10 years, I trust you are willing to do justice to all sides of issues that bear heavily on our industry's freedom and success.

Thank you for your consideration.

PRODUCER'S RIGHT TO SET A PRICE

Once upon a time a lady stopped at a roadside farm stand to buy broccoli. "How much is it?" she asked the clerk.

"Dollar twenty-five a pound," came the reply.

"Oh, I guess I won't buy any today, thanks," said the customer.

"But listen!" implored the clerk, "You have to pay that price because it costs us that much to produce it." The customer looked surprised, but turned away. "Get back here!" yelled the desperate clerk. "The broccoli farmers are going out of business! If you don't buy it at the increased price there will soon be no broccoli on the market."

The customer left, turned into a country road, and purchased her broccoli for a dollar a pound at another roadside market. When it was heard that the customer had purchased elsewhere, the infuriated clerk and her friends got together, and with the help of lawyers and legislators came up with a marvelous plan to save the broccoli industry. They formed a co-op and set a price for broccoli that would make a fair profit for floundering farmers. Since the vegetable would no longer be available at a cheaper price the customer would be willing to buy them from them and keep them from going under. All markets were free not to join the co-op but those who did not participate were sued.

By and by the same customer appeared at the farm stand. She glanced at the supply of wilted, yellowing broccoli and decided to buy cabbage instead. "What will happen to the broccoli?" she asked.

"No problem," replied the clerk, "At the end of the month the government buys what we can't sell."

The National Dairy Promotion and Research Board, composed of 36 dairy farmers, was established by The Dairy and Tobacco Adjustment Act of 1983 to develop and administer a coordinated program of promotion, research and nutrition education to strengthen the dairy industry position in the marketplace. This effort is financed by America's dairy farmers.

Call For Major Policy Changes, Increased International Cooperation,

DES MOINES, Ia. — Delegates attending the 1988 World Food Conference, June 5-9 here, are expected to urge adoption of changes in international trade and monetary exchange policies to help ease the growing problem of world-wide hunger.

"It is one of the paradoxes of our time," said Iowa Governor Terry E. Branstad. The Governor's office is heading organization efforts for the conference. "Millions are dying of hunger, yet, in this country and many others, we must deal with the problems of excess supplies."

Despite significant gains in world-wide food production since the 1974 World Food Conference, Branstad said statistics show that the number of hungry people in the world has increased. He added that the rate of increase has accelerated in the 1980s.

Evidence to be presented at the conference indicates little hope for solving hunger without a cooperative international effort involving long-term food supply and technological assistance. The most severe hunger problems are now being experienced in Asia, Africa and Latin America. Yet, in these areas, destruction of cropland due to desertification, salinization and erosion is most severe. These areas also are expected to account for 90 percent of the increase in world population until the year 2025.

Due to factors including large debt loads and international trade issues, many developing countries find that their ability to import food has been reduced substantially. Taken together, these factors have driven food consumption levels down in numerous developing countries.

Many governments are now reordering their priorities to improve the social and economic efficiency of their economies, Branstad reported. These changes, he added, can provide a better means to efficiently manage food distribution, to effectively encourage development and to address world hunger.

Delegations from 40 countries are expected to attend the 1988 World Food Conference, and registrations are still being accepted. Presentations will be simultaneously translated into French, Spanish, German, Japanese and English. Those wanting more information or to register for the conference should contact Susan Sanders, conference manager, by telephone at 515/246-6028 or via Telex at 439-070. Recorded conference updates also are available by dialing 515/246-6032.

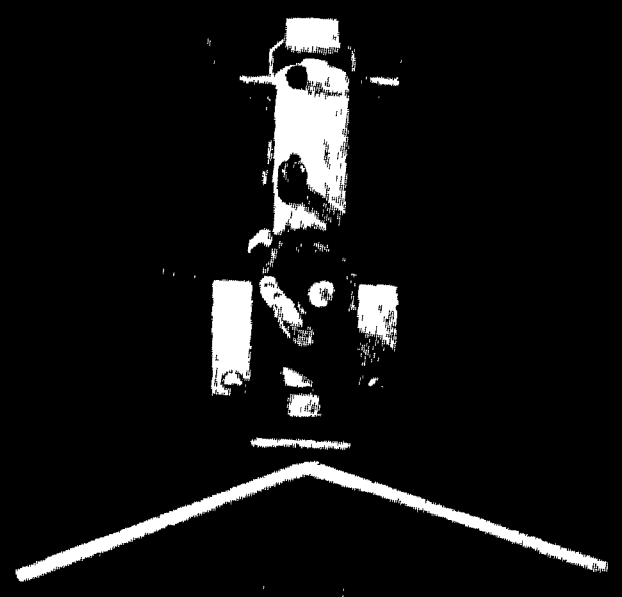
Farm Credit Is Plowing New Ground.



There's something satisfying about that morning when the winter wait's over and you start breaking ground for a new growing season.

At Farm Credit, we know the feeling. Because we're owned and controlled by farmers. And because we've just finished the groundwork to make our services faster. More economical. And more responsive to you than ever before.

We're adding the business technology to cut paperwork. And we're expanding our services, so you can come to us for all your farm loans. Loans to buy acreage or build on it. People who understand farming from the ground up.

Our changes aren't earth-shaking. They're simply ways to set up the best possible conditions for growth.

And whether it's done with a plan or a plow, that's what breaking new ground is all about.

Pennsylvania's DHIA Offers New Somatic Cell Management Report

BY J. BOYER, W. HEALD
PaDHIA and Penn State Extension

STATE COLLEGE (Centre) — The most costly disease in dairy cattle is mastitis, and the most accurate measure of udder health that appears on DHIA records is the linear score of somatic cell counts. Estimates of mastitis costs are $150-$200 per cow per year, and nearly 70% of the dollars lost to mastitis are due to subclinical, or hidden mastitis. The only practical way to measure this hidden mastitis is with DHIA somatic cell counting monthly, Starting this month, of you are enrolled in the somatic cell testing program, you will find a new "Somatic Cell Management Report" included with the more familiar DHIA monthly reports. This report contains expanded analysis in a different format from the information already available on the Herd Summary Report. To keep costs to you as low as possible, the report is laser-printed on both sides of a sheet of plain white paper. The front side includes current test and historical information for your herd. The back side lists individual cow data for the highest fifty somatic cell cows in your herd, or less if your herd has fewer than 50 cows. Information in related area is logically grouped in boxes on this page.

Linear Scoring

The first of these boxes shows a distribution of cows by SCC linear score for the current test date in a manner similar to that already available on the monthly herd summary. The mean linear score for your herd as well as the average weighted SCC/ml for the sampled herd are given here. The first of these can be used as an indicator of overall herd health, while the second should correspond roughly with the measured bulk tank somatic cell count on this sample day if all of the cows in the herd contribute milk to the tank. This can vary greatly from the processing plant test. One cow can produce 40% of the cells in the tank, and, if her milk is withheld from DHIA or tank milk, a large difference can be see in SCC/ml. Herd average linear scores of 3.0 and below are best for maximum milk and profit.

In the next box, a monthly comparison of the average linear score for the herd on each test date over the last year appears. For the corresponding test dates, you will see the number of new infections that began on the indicated date, and the number of chronic infections in the herd at that time. A cow is considered to be infected when her linear score is 4.0 or greater, severely infected when her linear score is 5.0 or greater, and chronically infected when her linear score is 5.0 or greater for more than one test in a lactation. The totals given may help you to evaluate the overall effectiveness of your mastitis treatment program.

You should be careful to observe two things: first, because this is a new program, some of the trends for these items will not be available for all past months. Over time, the report will become more complete. Second, once a cow is chronic during a lactation, she remains chronic regardless of whether she has mastitis on the current test. Therefore, the totals given for some items need to be considered carefully in evaluating the udder health of your herd. A chart in the middle box of the page is intended to graphically summarize mean linear scores for your herd over the last year. This chart corresponds to the mean linear scores from most to least recent test, just as they are shown in the box above.

Immediately at the right of this graph are numbers indicating the amount of milk in pounds and number of dollars lost due to high somatic cell levels. Note that the dollar adjustment is based on the observation that a cow loses about 1.5 pounds of milk per day for each linear score count above 2.0. It does not attempt to take into account intangible (but significant) effects of high SCC such as the loss of dollars on premium programs when infected cows' milk is used in the bulk tank, or the cost of treatment for mastitis.

A current infection status box in the middle left, gives a breakdown of newly infected, and chronically infected cows based on the first and later lactations. These same categories are used in the boxes at the very bottom of the herd SCC page, which attempts to break down the herd into groups based on the number of days in milk. For each of these stages of lactation, the number of cows, amount of testday milk, mean linear score, and number of new infections are shown. First lactation groups should obviously have fewer new infections and lower linear SCC scores because of their less frequent exposure to mastitis causing bacteria.

The back page is an individual cow summary which shows the indentity of the animal by barn name and control number. Cows are ranked in decreasing order from high testday SCC to low. The mean linear score for this lactation appears in the next column. Production information including testday milk, an estimated (or actual) 305, days in milk, and milk lost due to SCC appear in the next columns. The percentage of this individual's contribution to the bulk tank appears next. You should note that even though the severity of an infection is based on the linear score, the amount of somatic cell in the bulk tank is based on the raw SCC/ml. So a handful of cows, or even a single, severely infected animal, may make the largest percentage contributions to the bulk tank. Frequently this milk should be withheld from the tank until additional SCC tests give a result nearer herd goal.

Finally, some historical and reproductive information is given for each of the cows that appears on this page. Cows confirmed pregnant are marked in the last column with a 'Y'. For bred cows, a due date will also appear. In order to help you identify problem animals, the number of times a cow has had a severe infection is given for each with linear score 5.0 or greater. You can track seasonal problems, or the progress of your mastitis program by noting the first infection dates given for those animals that have had some history of infection. Determine the cause of the new infections and correct the situation to protect uninfected cows. For help see your county agent or herd veterinarian.

This is intended to give you some idea of the items that are available on this new somatic cell report. It was not designed to explain the value of somatic cell testing or to show you how to use information given. More on the value of mastitis treatment and the use of somatic cell testing and reporting is available in the booklet "How to Read Your DHIA Reports". Or, you can request fact sheet DSE-87-52, "Using DHI Somatic Cell Counts to Increase Production and Profits" from your County Extension office. As always, if you suspect problems with the information contained here, or with any of your DHIA records, you should contact Dixie Burris at 1-800-DHI-TEST.

Federal Order 36 Hosts PDPP Dairy Month Promotional

HARRISBURG (Dauphin) — The kick-off for June Dairy Month in Pennsylvania will be in Federal Order 36, when on June 4 the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion (PDPP) co-sponsors the Erie County Dairy Promotion Committee's first major special event — a five hour dairy day at the Erie Zoo.

On June 9, the PDPP teams up with the Western Milk Dealers and Federal Order 36 Advertising and Promotion Agency (mid-east UDIA) in putting on a three hour dairy event in Pittsburgh's downtown Market Square.

Some 25 additionla "June is Dairy Month" promotions statewide are receiving assistance from the PDPP, which has a unique "matching funds" project that returns money directly to dairy farmers to help them finance their local promotions. During 1988 some $80,000 has been made available to more than 50 local committees.

Re-organized after the October, 1987 passage of Act I, the PDPP is now governed by a 21-member Commodity Marketing Board appointed by PA Secretary of Agriculture Boyd E. Wolff.

As part of that re-organization, new staff was hired. Program Manager Donna Verner directs and oversees all promotional and advertising activities. Promotions Specialist Laura Long helps develop campaigns and special events, and provides personal assistance to local organizations. A free-lance public relations writer has been hired, and two interns have been brought on board to conduct research for the program's long-range planning process, and to develop special holiday season promotions.

Among the current advertising campaigns developed by the PDPP are: "Make it Milk," which promotes fluid milk as a refreshing and fun beverage; "White Lite — It's 2% milk, 100% beautiful," which is promoting the low-calorie drink as fashionable and nutritious; and "Summer Love", focusing on ice cream.

The PDPP has designed and implemented a new, low-fat, low-calorie dairy recipe contest for Pennsylvanians that received extensive media coverage during the 1988 Farm Show Week in Harrisburg.

Other projects in which the PDPP takes a leadership role include the placement of milkshakes in school lunch lines, the Dairy Princess Program, the Dairy of Distinction Program, and the Milk Quality Research Program at Pennsylvania State University.

Dairy farmers in Western Pennsylvania's Federal Order 36 are reminded their sign-up period is June 1-15, and if they have not received a PDPP sign-up card, their designation must be submitted in writing to C. Mack Endsley, Federal Milk Market Administrator, PO Box 30128, Cleveland, Ohio 44130.

Farm Philosophy

By Newton Bair

"THAT'S THE WAY WE ALWAYS DID IT!"

A New Idea. It has to strike just right, or I won't buy it. Good or bad, here's how the reasoning process works.

"If the idea wasn't mine, it must have been cooked up by someone else. I don't know Who thought of it or why, so it probably won't affect me."

"Let someone else try it first. If it works for them, I'll consider it. If it doesn't work, I'll snicker. After all, I'm not a guinea pig."

"Somebody tried the same idea over in Schmucksville, and it didn't work. So it probably won't work here either."

"New ideas mean change. It always costs money to make a change, so count me out. I'm happy with things just as they are."

"Let the other fellow invest in something new. If it looks like he is making lots of money, then I'll take another look at it."

"I like my own ideas best. They're always sound, and because I thought of them, they're sure to work." (I have to admit though, that I seldom have a new idea, and they always give me a headache!")

"If my spouse says it'll work, I take that as a sure sign that it won't." (But I'll try it anyway.)

"If the Bank disagrees with my idea I'll grumble and growl to my spouse. I'll make them wait for the next payment on my loan. I might even go to another Bank."

"If the idea comes from Harrisburg it must be bad, and if it comes from Washington, oy-yoy! It's even worse! I'll have nothing to do with it!" (Maybe).

"If I think nobody is watching, I might sneak a try."

Now, on the other hand, when my neighbors start talking about how good the idea is, I'll open my ears. (Unless it happens to be my friend who thinks Republican, talks Democrat, and then doesn't even vote!)

Now, not all new ideas are really new. Some are just an old idea that has been re-born with a new twist. Or maybe it required a longer gestation period before birth. Some ideas are so weak at birth that they must be coddled, pampered, fed and nurtured for a long time, before anyone takes them seriously. Then they must be kneaded, stretched, frozen, thawed, beaten and superheated in the oven of controversy until they're ready to use. Otherwise, they're only "Half-baked" ideas.

There are so many new ideas aborning these days that no single mind can absorb them all. Among the multitude of wild and wooly ones, there is an occasional gem. Like all gems, an idea must be cut and polished. If it has real merit the lustre will be irresistible. If it is flawed, in time the cracks will destroy it.

By now you have noticed that I haven't given you a SINGLE NEW IDEA. However, you can pick up lots of them in the Farm Press, the PTA or Extension meeting, or even at Church. You might even have a few of your own. Regardless of where they come from, they will be juggled and jelled and sorted out by the Human Reasoning Process.

A bad idea might thrive a long time before all the cracks show up, but sooner or later it finds the scrap heap.

Any idea born of sound principles takes lots of labor and pain to perfect. A really good idea can take a lot of kicking around, and given long enough to reason it out, we will reach the inevitable conclusion.

"WHY, THAT'S THE WAY WE ALWAYS WANTED TO DO IT ANYWAY!" Or, "I TOLD YOU SO!" Or "NOW, WHY DIDN'T I THINK OF THAT?" I guess that's why we're Human.

USDA To Survey Pennsylvania Farmers

ALLENTOWN (Lehigh) — Pennsylvania farmers will be asked to participate in a nationwide survey conducted by the U.S. Department of Agriculture in early June, according to the Pennsylvania Agricultural Statistics Service (PASS).

W.C. Evans, chief statistician for PASS, said that information gleaned from the survey will be used to estimate 1988 crop acreages and mid-year livestock inventories. PASS is operated jointly by USDA and the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture.

USDA's Agricultural Statistics Board will release national and state reports based on the information in late June and early July.

Evans noted that farmer cooperation is necessary to provide reliable crop and livestock information.

"Results of this survey will provide farmers, agribusiness, policy makers and other users of agricultural data with the information vital for planning and decision making," Evans said.

All information concerning individuals is confidential and will be used only in developing the state and national estimates, he emphasized.

Additional information concerning the survey is available by calling PASS headquarters, 717-787-3904, or the State Department of Agriculture's toll-free number, 1-800-AG-PENNA.

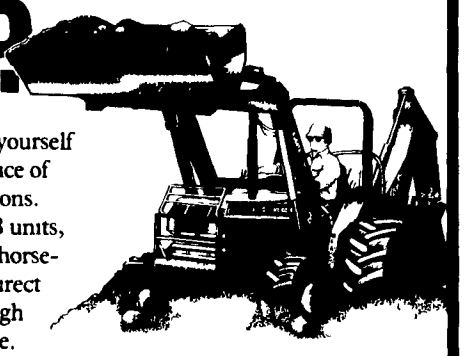
IT'S GOT MORE PICKUP



Kubota makes digging yourself out of a hole easy with a choice of tractor/loader/backhoe options.

There are three T/L/B units, ranging from 32 to 40 PTO horsepower. Each comes with a direct injection diesel engine for high power output and torque rise.

A Kubota is more maneuverable too. With a front bevel gear 4-wheel-drive system, the turning radius is less than ten feet.

Paired with a Kubota backhoe and loader, it's an extremely efficient combination. Both implements are quick attach. The standard 3-point hitch and PTO also lets you add a scraper or tiller.

So come in and take a look at a Kubota tractor/loader/backhoe with pick-up-and-go.

30 YEARS AGO
THIS WEEK

-Four of the 21 delegates from Pennsylvania to the 73rd annual convention of the Holstein-Friesian Assn. of America are from Lancaster County.

They are: Earl L. Groff, Strasburg; Clarence E. Lyons, Lancaster; Harvey Rettew, Manheim; and Paul G. Longenecker, Strasburg.

An all-time high of 182 delegates will represent the membership of the association in Boston. This compares to last year's high of 179. Total attendance-delegates, members and guests-is expected to exceed 2,000.

-There's not going to be a Pennsylvania Poultry Queen this year. Instead the fortunate young lady is going to be known as "Miss Pennsylvania Poultry Industry."

The State Poultry Federation changed the contest this year and dropped the titles of "Turkey Queen" and "Poultry Queen" to make the contest more representative of the poultry industry.

-The past week saw the first full week of farming weather uninterrupted by rain during the 1958 crop season.

Lancaster County farmers, caught short in their field work by the extended cool wet spring, worked both day and night to get corn ground ready and to get the crop into the ground.

Tomato plants are arriving in volume from the South, and planting for processing is underway in south and centeral sections of the state.

-For the first time in more than 11 years, Frank Richards missed an official board meeting of the American Angus Association, according to Elliot Brown, president of the national organization. Richard, executive secretary, is recovering from a heart attack in the Missouri Methodist Hospital, St. Joseph, MO.

-A completely new operation, from a newly designed egg carton to an extensive merchandising program, is being instigated by Hess Bros. Farms Inc., Ephrata.

Most extensive in the modernization program will be the construction of a new 10,000 square foot plant and office, now under construction on Route 222 just west of Reamstown.

-More than a hundred new federal crop insurance policies have been taken out this year by Lancaster County farmers, according to Elias J. Frey, Rawlinsville, local agent.

These are in addition to the more than a thousand policies which are in continuous effect.

Four basic crops are covered by federal insurance this year. For the first time corn and winter barley have been added to the list.

West Germans Impressed With Pennsylvania Farming

BY LOU ANN GOOD

LEBANON — "We are surprised that America is so great and so nice," said Helmut Porr in his halting English. "We had read things and heard things about the American way, not all of them good, so we decided to come and see for ourselves."

In just a few days, Porr along with wife and 26 other West Germans affirm that "America is as good or better than our country."

Porr said, "Your farmers work harder here; they are more diligent." He believes that children are also harder workers. He stated that in his country the children don't seem to take as much interest in farming because they don't believe there is any future in it.

Porr was astounded by the green meadows (lawns) that surround local homes. People in Germany tend to have gardens on the plot of land next to their home. "In our country, we separate our homes with fences. It's like saying, "This is my home or my castle." But Porr likes the idea of no fences to separate neighbors.

The group is touring several eastern states through an agricultural tour from Frankfurt, W. Germany. According to the groups' local coordinator, Stan Bucher of Lebanon, all of the group members are either farmers or involved in agricultural industry.

Wilhelm Becker, hog specialist who formulates feed and designs farm buildings in his country, commented, "Your barns are bigger than ours." He is fascinated with the typical farm setups in the area. "You have your buildings and fields surrounding your homes. In our country, our houses are in towns and we must drive to our fields in the country."

Becker and his wife, Irene, were delighted that their host family, Clarence and Harriet Weaver, Lebanon farmers, could speak Pennsylvania Dutch. "I can speak in my dialect and we have no problem understanding each other," he remarked.

Weaver added, "I'm usually ashamed of my Dutch accent, but it came in handy this time. In 1721 my ancestors came from Germany; it's amazing that I can communicate with Germans after all these years."

Not everything in America impressed the tour group. They were apalled by New York City—but Porr declared, "The beauty of Pennsylvania makes up for it."

Becker patted his stomach and charged, "There's too much good food here." But he did have one complaint, "I don't like eating corn—that's pig food."

Clarence Weaver found his Pennsylvania Dutch dialect enabled him to converse fluently with his German speaking guests this week. From left, Lynelle and her dad speak with Wilhelm and Irene Becker. Harriet Weaver is on far right.

Vintage Clothing: The Glamourous And Fascinating Styles Of The Past

BY BETH HUBER
Maryland Correspondent

FREDERICK, MD — In the heart of historic Frederick, Maryland, where an abundance of the United States history can be found, lives Paula Francis. Paula holds a key to a small portion of our country's history, which opens the door to the glamorous and fascinating world of vintage clothing.

Vintage clothing is not a common topic of discussion, but Paula thrives on it. At the age of 37, Paula has just recently become actively involved with her business.

For 20 years, Paula had been a professional violinist, playing with such organizations as the Baltimore Symphony Orchestra, The Kennedy Center Opera House, and performing for such people as the President of The United States and other dignitaries and stars. While performing, Paula was restricted to a specific dress code and was unable to express her personality through her clothing. Near the end of her musical career she began to have the desire to dress as an individual and not as a member of a group. It was at this time she began to be interested in vintage clothing.

"I am a devout feminist and having a Czechoslovakian background I really never knew why I loved lace!" This led Paula to do some research. She found that the most beautiful fashions, dating before the 1930's had been created by the poorest, most destitute women. These women worked for pennies to sew beads onto garments and do the fine lacework on the many Victorian and Edwardian styles. It was through findings such as these that Paula quickly began to truly appreciate the vintage craftmanship and styles.

Until August 1987, Paula was in the vintage clothing business part-time. She had begun buying vintage clothes piece by piece beginning in 1982, when she bought a flapper dress.

Paula began selling her collection in a basement shop below the vintage shop, collage, operated by dealer Carol Canty. Later she moved to a shop in downtown Frederick, owned by Sharon Meachum, whose shop was called Lady-on-Skates. Sharon showed Paula the ropes of the trade, and after a month she had moved home to her own shop.

Up until this time Paula was purchasing items but really did not have the room to display many of her treasures. In August 1987, Paula inquired as to whether or not any openings were available at the Antique Station, a renovated skating rink, which houses many of the area's antique dealers. Paula was dismayed to find a 45 vendor waiting list. Fortunately, since there were no current vintage dealers at the location, the managers wanted her to move in as soon as possible.

Paula decided to call her shop Humoreske. It is the title of one of her favorite violin piece composed by a Czechoslovakian composer. It refers to a musical composition that is typically whimsical or fanciful in character.

Not having worked in any form of the retail business prior to her selling her pieces Paula felt "apologetic" when selling a piece to a customer, but that feeling has since passed since she has built a clientel.

There is a lot more to the business than just buying and selling over the counter. Over the past few months Paula has been able to acquire certain contacts known as pickers. When Paula first began in the business of vintage clothing she did not have many sources to purchase quality vintage clothing. Initially she attended flea markets and yard sales, but only so much vintage could be found through these avenues. Paula began subscribing to a vintage newsletter and doors began to open through those contacts and through an unlikely source, a novelist.

As a former performer and lover of the arts, Paula has been a fan of novelist Barbara Michaels; therefore, through a fan letter nine years ago, a lasting friendship has been established.

Barbara Michaels is the author of Shattered Silk, a story of a woman who established her own vintage clothing business. Through the heroine's collecting she attracted an intruder who wanted to kill to get one of her items.

The basis of this story, was developed from information given

Shown here is author Charlotte Macleod, alias Alisa Craig, wearing a 1920 Spanish silk embroidered shawl and a 1918, pink plumed cloche. Charlotte is a best selling author of over 40 mystery and suspense novels, the 1987 recipient of Nero Wolf Award and a guest of honor at the 1988 Bouchercon International mystery writers and Fan Convention. Charlotte also resides in Frederick.

Paula is pictured here in a 1920's fox fur and hat. It is not unusual to see Paula in her vintage clothes. She has not been to a department store for years!

Paula is shown posing for the photographer in front of her shop Humoreske.

Pictured here is an Edwardian era wedding dress. This dress could also be worn today with no question as to its history.

Three Contestants Vie For Mercer County Crown

GROVE CITY (Mercer) — The reigning Mercer County Dairy Princess, Miss Angela Haas, hosted a get-acquainted tea for prospective candidates and their mothers at the Mercer County Cooperative Extension Service Center recently.

Those vying for the crown and banner this year include Cheri Clayton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Clayton of Sandy Lake; Jana Ferris, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Ferris of New Wilmington and Sheila Weber, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Weber of Grove City.

Mercer County will culminate their 'June is Dairy Month' celebrations with their annual Dairy Princess Pageant on Friday evening, June 24, at the Extension center, at which time Miss Haas will crown her successor from among three candidates.

Miss Haas is quoted as telling the three candidates that her "reign as Dairy Princess has been a once in a lifetime expereience of work, learning and enjoyment."

Vintage Clothing

to her by Carol Canty and Sharon Meachum, who had helped Paula get her business started. It was through Barbara that Paula met one of her current pickers.

Chris Woodyard, another fan of Barbara's from Ohio, had read Shattered Silk, and told the author that she had access to vintage clothing and could provide Paula with them. Chris has since been able to provide Paula with a variety of items, items that are practical and of good color.

When Chris became more familiar with Paula's tastes she was able to provide a larger quantity and quality.

Occasionally items are not immediately resaleable, but Paula enjoys working with the clothing and the fact they are not in prime shape does not matter.

Rather than sending the items through the mail Chris often gives them to Georgiana Holly, a friend, who travels from Ohio to Baltimore. On her way to Baltimore, Georgiana would stop in Frederick to leave the parcels with Paula. Paula came to call Georgiana "Hurricane Georgie." Paula explained, "She flies through Frederick just like a hurricane."

Paula continues to develop contacts throughout the United States as well as getting involved with local historical societies in hopes that vintage interst will be kindled through that avenue.

As stated earlier, Paula has familiarized herself very thoroughly on the topic of vintage. Through this process she has come to know some trivia of the era's. Such trivia includes the fact that during the Victorian era, which is the time up until 1901, the clothing was very confining, so confining that many women would have their lower rib removed so they could look thinner around the waist. It was important to have a very thin waist while your hips and bust were voluptuous.

The theory was that the less you could move the wealthier your husband was. This goes to prove why so many corsets were worn and petticoats layered. Women wore gloves so tight that they needed servants to put them on. The gloves of the day were those that reached above the elbow. Some of the gloves were so tight that the wearer's hands would fall asleep and they could not write or even ring a door bell.

Utilitarian clothing, as worn by farm wives and servants, had loose shoulders and arms for the purpose of being more practical for scrubbing floors and rocking babies.

Styles do change and they do make a social statement. Paula noted through her experience that it appears the style of looking very thin has traveled a 30 to 40-year time span, "It appears about every 30 to 40 years they go from pulling in and letting out." Corsets and girdles are not popular right now, but who is to say they never will be.

It is very plain to see that Paula Francis thoroughly enjoys collecting, restoring and selling vintage clothing to those who share the same love as herself. It is definitely a way to experience early American history.

For every stylish woman in 1912 a walking suit was a must have. Shown here is just that in chocolate velvet with a Russian stone martin furpiece and muffs.

The state title is honorary and does not involve the interrpution of school and employment plans.

INSTEAD OF NAGGING, TRY REDIRECTION WITH CHILDREN--RADIO

If you spend much time with young children, you're probably well aware of how effective nagging is . . . not very! Try redirection instead. Redirection means substituting an acceptable activity for a less acceptable one.

For example, if a child is chewing on a book, you can take the book away and give the child something that could be chewed on safely.

This simple approach usually works better than nagging, scolding or punishing a child. And it's especially helpful with babies and toddlers who are too young to understand why they cannot do certain things.

STEPS TO SUCCESS IN THE KITCHEN

Have you ever announced a delicious dinner surprise, and out came a flop, a failure, simply goo, or even a dried-out brick? Here are some tips to follow to ensure mealtime success.

Be sure to read the entire recipe before you begin. Understand cooking terms; look them up in a basic cookbook if you aren't sure. There really is a big difference between whipping and folding, between boiling and braising, and between poaching and steaming.

Assemble all your ingredients before you begin to cook. Do not substitute ingredients unless you check your cookbook for equivalents. Organize in advance. Chop, cut, peel, and grind before mixing ingredients. Measure carefully. Use standardized measuring cups and spoons, not tableware.

Add ingredients in the order given in the recipe. Often recipes require particular reactions to occur among ingredients for a successful product. Use the size pan your recipe recommends; another may cause over or under cooking, or even overflowing since many batters rise as they cook.

Do cook at the oven temperature specified in the recipe. If you suspect your oven is inaccurate, get an oven thermometer and use it regularly. Check your dish before the official cooking time is up. Even the best ovens and range top burners can vary, and you will need to adjust the cooking time accordingly. Use reliable recipes. Sometimes those written out by a friend omit steps or give vague measurements.

MILK IN A BOX SAVES TIME, TROUBLE, AND CALORIES

Milk used to come from cows. Then it came in bottles, cartons, bags, and now many people buy it in boxes. Do you? Boxed, non-fat dry milk is one of the least expensive most versatile forms of milk available. Yet, it contains most all the vitamins, minerals and protein of the original fluid product.

Milk is the leading source of calcium for most of us, and is essential for the development of strong bones and teeth for children and adults. Non-fat dry milk has an advantage over other forms of milk because it costs less. It also contains only two-thirds the calories, good news for those who want to watch their weight.

Sometimes we are reluctant to use an unfamiliar product, not knowing how it should be handled. Or sometimes we give up on a new item before we have given it a fair try. Here are a few tips on the use of non-fat, dry milk:

* Buy dry milk that has been fortified with vitamins A and D — a no cost bonus.

* The flavor of dry milk improves after chilling, so mix it well in advance. Shade it thoroughly and chill it in the refrigerator in a closed container overnight.

* In most recipes, use dry milk as you would regular milk. No need to mix it ahead of time; simply add the powder to the other ingredients in the recommended proportions.

* To make a low calorie dessert topping, beat equal amounts of dry milk powder with ice water until it forms stiff peaks.

* To make sour milk, mix in the usual way, then add vinegar or lemon — 1 tablespoon per cup of milk. (Put 1 tablespoon of vinegar or lemon in a measuring cup and fill to the 1 cup line with the freshly mixed milk.) Let stand for 10 minutes and use in pancakes or biscuits.

KEY COLORS FOR SUMMER

VOGUE suggests building your summer wordrobe around key pivotal pieces in navy and white. Think in terms of separates for versatility. If you are daring, add an accent piece in acidy-chartreuse, bright yellow or hot pink. If this color palette does not appeal, try red which is being used as an accent this summer and making a strong showing in '89 collections.

THREAD SCRAPS

Tired of vacuuming snippets of thread every time you sew. Place an empty margarine tub with about 1/2 in. of water in it beside your sewing machine. Whenever you clip a thread, remove basting, or unpick, just drop the bits of thread into the water and they stay put.

Firing up the grill... it's synonymous with families coming together, friends gathering. In honor of the occasion, the American Dairy Association has concocted and kitchen-tested this menu that's as easy on the cook as it is delicious for the guests.

What could be simpler than letting your guests cook their own meal? They'll think it's great fun to customize their kabobs. Simply supply what's needed — long, metal skewers, cheese-filled sausages, cut-up vegetables and the hot grill — and let them thread and barbecue their own meal on a stick. Advise your guests that the meat and vegetables will cook more evenly if they leave a little bit of space between each piece when threading the skewers.

Festive Kabobs

Knockwurst, precooked
Barbecue Sauce (recipe follows)
Green pepper pieces, about 2-inches square
Swiss cheese
Cherry tomatoes

Cut each sausage into thirds. Split each piece lengthwise almost through to outer edge. Marinate in barbecue sauce several hours. Cut cheese wedges to fit into split sausage. Alternate sausage and vegetables on metal skewers. Brush with barbecue sauce. Grill over medium heat, cheese side down, until cheese is soft. Turn; continue grilling until sausage is hot and cheese begins to melt. Serve with additional heated barbecue sauce, if desired.

Buttered Barbecue Sauce
Yield: 1¼ cups

¼ cup (½ stick) butter
¼ cup chopped onion
1 can (8 ounce) tomato sauce
4 teaspoons fresh lemon juice
1 tablespoon EACH: Worcestershire sauce, firmly packed brown sugar
½ teaspoon dry mustard
1/8 teaspoon salt

Melt butter in a small saucepan; saute onion until tender, about 5 minutes. Add remaining ingredients; mix well. Simmer, uncovered, 10 minutes.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

This has been a busy morning. Although, I'll admit that most mornings fit into that category.

I decided it was time to put some winter clothes away and get out the summer ones. Now this is not the big job that it was when the six children were home. Then everyone had to be measured to see which things fit and which ones could be passed on to the next young child.

Only halfway through this job, my husband asked me to drive him to a distant tractor repair service to get his tractor. It was a rainy day and showers were coming so he took rainwear along with him. On my drive home I decided to stop and buy some bedding plants.

Actually my garden is full of perennials but I like to have a few showy ones blooming all summer along the edge of the lawn. And, I also wanted some cantaloupe and watermelon plants. It is very nice to be able to gather fruit from your own garden. Last summer when we got back from Alaska, after two weeks of hot weather at home, our garden was too full of melons.

As I was going to a luncheon and was expected to take a salad, I hurried home to prepare that. And, when I'm away, the men still have to eat. So, I was glad that I'd prepared something for them the night before. Somehow I always manage to have too many desserts. Often there will be an uneaten cake, a box of cookies, rice pudding and two kinds of jello with fruit all waiting to be used at the same time.

Therefore, I'm sure the men won't starve when I dash off to a luncheon in Lancaster.

Homemade Ice Cream Tips

ATLANTA, GA — Summer is traditionally the season when families spend a lot of time together vacationing, going to the park, or heading to the lake.

One activity that can be enjoyed by everyone is making homemade ice cream, and manufacturers of ice cream makers report that more and more people are participating.

According to industry estimates, sales of ice cream makers have almost tripled since 1985, to more than 3 million a year.

Much of the credit for the increase rests with the development of the Donvier hand-cranked ice cream maker, which requires neither salt or ice, comes in three sizes, and sells for less than $50.

But buying the ice cream machine is only part of the challenge. You will most certainly want to check the bookstores for one of the many recipe books on homemade ice creams. On the other hand, half the fun is experimenting with new flavors.

Here are a few tips for making a rich, good tasting ice cream:

* Don't scrimp on ingredients. Go for high quality and make sure they are cold.
* If you are spicing-up your creation with alcohol, add only enough to flavor the mixture. If you add too much, the ice cream won't freeze.
* Serve the ice cream as soon as it is made. Homemade ice cream will not keep well.
* When adding pineapple, make sure that you do it slowly. The pineapple can curdle the cream.
* Don't use a wet scoop. The water will ruin the texture of the ice cream.

Serve up some summer fun that can be enjoyed by the entire family. Cool off those hot days with the refreshing taste of homemade ice cream.

Baa, Baa Sheep

BY LOU ANN GOOD

PENRYN (Lancaster) — Ten-year-old Jennifer Nestleroth's favorite place is in the sheep pens. "I like to talk to sheep 'cause they don't talk back," she explained, then added, "Well, sometimes they do say, "BAA!"

Jennifer glanced around the barn that houses their sheep, then she pointed to a hefty sheep as she cautioned, "There's Big Mamma. One time she backed Mandy in a corner and bucked her."

Mandy is Jennifer's nine-year-old sister who likes hanging out with the sheep almost as much as her sister. She declared, "It didn't hurt; it just scared me."

Both girls love giving the lambs a bottle. "Sometimes their mothers don't have enough milk, then we get to feed them," said Mandy. The lambs wiggle their little tails as they gulp the milk from the bottle that the girls hold. They need to feed them three or four times a day. When the lambs get a big enough, they are allowed to romp in the rolling meadows that surround the Nestleroth's farm.

The girls name most of the more than 400 sheep that roam over the 140-acre farm where they live with their parents Mark and Hazel Nestleroth and two older sisters.

"We watch how the sheep act, or we think about how they act—then we name them," Jennifer explained.

For example, Nip has a nip out of his ear. Flip earned his name because he likes to take flips in the straw. Many of their sheep are named after Bible characters. Issac robbed milk from other ewes so they named him after the Old Testment character who robbed his brother's birthright. Samson, of course, is big and strong.

Jennifer squeezed one of her Romanov sheep. "I like him best 'cause he's black and has a fat tail," she said.

Mandy said, "I like the spotted sheep the best. They look like they have decorations."

Daddy, they both admit, is not easily influenced by colors. He likes to see muscle in sheep—lots of it. Mr. Nestleroth likes to cross-breed the ewes so that the offspring gets the best traits of both parents. The Nestleroths have many different breeds, which excell in different traits. Suffolk sheep have black faces and bare, black legs. They are usually healthy and adapt well to heat and cold. Hampshires are often raised in the area for market lambs, Romanovs usually have lots of lambs in sets of twins, triplets and quads. Polypay have a long breeding season. And then there is a wool-less breed called Kathdon. "They're nice because you don't need to worry about shearing the sheep and they're parasite resistant," Mr. Nestleroth explained.

Mr. Nestleroth said cross breeding allows them to produce close to 200 percent increase yearly. He hopes to raise that to 250 percent soon. All their sheep are bred for meat, not wool.

Is it Nehemiah or Solomon? Ask Jennifer, right, or Mandy who spend many happy hours with their sheep.

We love to play outside with our Australian Shepherd puppy named Peanut. She always joins us when we play at our little table. She also thinks it's fun to play in the sandbox with us. Our daddy wants Peanut to help him with our dairy cows. We would like information about Australian Shepherds and how to train them. Send your information to Lancaster Farming, P.O. Box 366, Lititz, PA 17543.

It's bottle feeding time for this lamb. His little tail wiggles back in forth in happy delight as Mandy holds the bottle.

Wee! Wee! Wee! I wish these little piggies would go home! I don't like them one bit. My cousin, Brad Shughart, is raising these pigs since their mother died. They like to follow my two-year-old brother Mark as he plays. I know they won't hurt me, but I'd rather watch them from my daddy's shoulders!

On being a farm wife - And other hazards

Joyce Bupp

"I just heard on the radio that the Conewago's flooding," said the eldest, coming into the kitchen late afternoon, where I was fixing supper.

"Aww, come on; I just crossed it an hour ago, and it looked perfectly normal," I countered. And, the wide, slow creek had. It had been stormy all afternoon in that northwest section of York County, but seemed nothing more than the ordinary, everday, passing thundershowers.

But a glance outside our own windows didn't offer encouragement. Thick, black clouds were fast moving in from the west. And the north. And, good grief, from the east. Sure enough; looked like we were in for it.

A smattering of rain was dripping as everyone showed up to eat before milking chores. Still, there was little thunder, or wind, which usually precedes rip-snorter storms. Maybe we'd luck out this threatening day.

About halfway through the quick meal, the proverbial opening of the sky hit. Instantly, sheets...torrents...a cloudburst.. of crashing raindrops pounded the farmstead.

Unexpectedly, the front door banged and niece, Missy, came running through. On her way home from her summer job, she'd detoured our direction when the rain became so intense she lost visibility.

Displaying his peculiar fascination with such storms. the Farmer hitched his chair over to the back door to watch this weather display.

"What dam broke?" was his sudden, startled comment. "A flood of water just came pouring down through the yard."

The house threatened to tilt - cartoon style - as the five of us rushed to the east window of the kitchen.

A river of tumultuous, muddy water was slopping over the edges of the new sod waterway, which divides the fields and the back lawn. Worse, one of equal or larger volume, a good fifteen feet wide, cascaded in a tremendous, pounding waterfall from the road, breaking out the side of the runoff ditch, and eating out a large section of the bank sloping to the yard. Pouring through the lawn were thousands of gallons of water - and mud and rocks and gravel.

My roses were under a foot of tumbling, brown runoff. Another river of liquid mud oozed over the patio. Even as we watched, the twin torrents joined between the rose bed and tumbled volumes of the waters over the bank of the new pond, where we'd been carefully cultivating a couple of prize fish.

"Cool!" exclaimed the youngest, utilizing an all-purpose expression covering any phenomenon of unusual interest.

It was, of course, not "cool" that the pond was shortly a muddy mess of silt, sodden old cornstalks, willow branches and miscellaneous litter. Nor was it cool that several inches of rich, sandy soil had washed off the roses. Gone were three dozen, large annuals I'd just planted four days before.

And it was less than cool that hundreds of thousands of gallons of water were washing off the cultivated, newly-planted, and newly-mown fields, slashing the field road, and flooding the yard. Nor was it cool that once again, the garage was under water and mud, and the ground cellar a shallow in-ground pool.

But, it was "cool" that he could launch the canoe, and paddle from the rose beds down through the alfalfa field to the fence row several hundred yards down toward the pasture meadow, which, of course, was a lake by now.

Last week's three-inches-in-fourty-minutes brought our worst-ever flooding through the yard. Localized, as were similar spot storms in the area, it washed out the side and a good half the contents of another nearby farm pond, muddied nearly all other ponds in the vicinity, devoured road edges, ate away bridge foundations and just generally left an all-round mess.

What was "cool" was that the flash flood caused no lifethreatening disasters and relatively little long-term property damage.

As often happens, what Mother Nature takes away on one hand, she compensates for elsewhere. When it was all over, fresh topsoil was found close at hand for refurbishing the rosebed. We had only to scoop it off the garage floor, the lawn, and out of ditches.

Now, is that "cool" or what?

BACK HOME

The gangrene hour. It happens everyday at our house. It's somewhere between six and seven o'clock. It's that bumpy stretch between bedlan and bedtime. It's the end of a work day, the end of a day at the babysitter, the end of a day of discovery, and the daily family reunion is about to take place.

"I'm home!" I exclaim as I make my way from the garage to the kitchen. Once there I'm greeted with the beaming face of a 9-month-old that brightens even a day that has seemed like a week long. However, one never knows what will come after the smile. It may be arms reaching out seeking to be cuddled, a mischeveous glance that says watch me explore, or a demanding cry that means feed me. Multiply this by the needs of a husband who also just got home and the family dog who has been waiting at home for us all day!

So it begins. The gangrene hour. A mother of three coined the term for this time period. She describes the gangrene hour as the time of day when things begin to rot. Parents are tied, kids are tired, and nothing is the way you want it to be. This is because expectations for this time of day are usually unrealistic. For example, it's been a stressful day of work and all you want to do is come home, kick off your shoes, slip into some comfy sweats, and sip some cool tea. But it doesn't usually work out so peacefully. There are dinners and snacks to serve, stories to absorb, games to play, and evening meetings for which to get ready. Moods seem to be very fragile by this time of day.

Child-care professionals explain that one reason that this time of day hits us so hard is that everybody needs to take 15 or 20 minutes to shift gears from work to homelife. However, with small children around, the gears tend to jam instead of shift. There is no quiet house to slip into and no easy way to make the transition. When you walk in the door, you walk into the reality of homelife at this hour. And if you've been home all day, you may be in full swing of the gangrene hours already!

Here are some first-aid treatments to make this desperately needed family time a healthy, happy time. First, find a way to clear your head at the end of the day, before you see your kids. This might mean staying a few minutes later to clear up details or maybe you just need some music of your choice to listen to as you drive home. If you've been at home all day, when you spouse returns, take a few minutes for a shower or brisk walk around the neighborhood.

Secondly, hunger is usually one of the causes of the gangrene hour. Although you don't want to spoil appetites, healthy snacks such as apple slices, carrot sticks, peanut butter crackers or raisins may keep everyone on a even keel until you can get dinner ready.

Try eliminating distractions that may be causing chaos. The television may be the main one at this time of day. It's just to difficult to hear about everybody's day, get a handle on the evening schedule and listen to Dan Rather all at the same time. For many families, there is only a two to three hour block of time that is available to be together. Don't clutter it with distractions that eliminate the opportunity to share and play together.

Create an evening routine as much as possible. While this does not need to follow a rigid time schedule, a little predictability at this time of day helps everyone. You might want to include everyone in the meal prepartion. Take time during dinner to hear from everyone. Find out what was the worst thing and the best thing about your day. This might work better than the typical, "How was your day?"

Pick out one of two of these suggestions and try it with your family. Perhaps just a more realistic perception of these after work hours is needed.

Finally, after the kids are in bed, find time to share with your spouse. After all, you need time to savor all the ridiculous, crazy, maddening things that your beautiful children did during the gangrene hour.

Need dessert in a hurry? Try these:

- Alternate layers of coffee ice cream, crushed chocolate sandwich cookies and toasted chopped pecans in parfait glasses. Keep in freezer until needed.
- Top sliced, purchased pound cake with fresh or canned peach slices and frozen raspberry yogurt.
- Spoon sweetened fresh fruit over split homemade or purchased baking powder biscuits; top with vanilla ice cream and more fruit.

State Society Of Farm Women Hold Spring Rally

BY LOU ANN GOOD

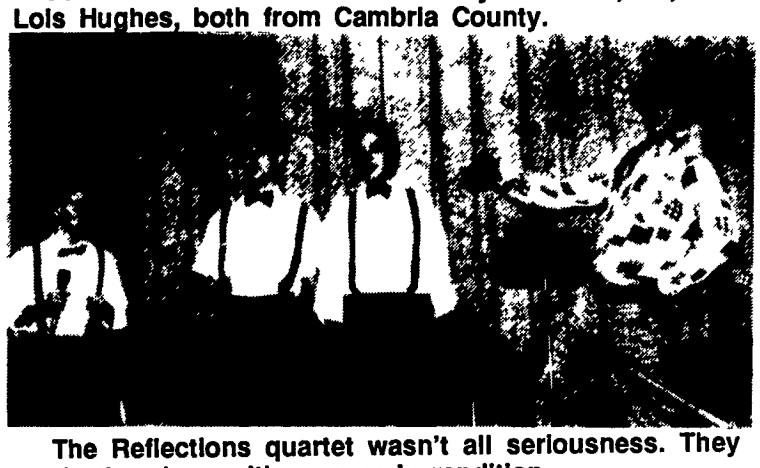
ALTOONA (Blair) — Approximately 800 women celebrated the Spring Rally here by the Pennsylvania Society of Farm Women. May 19 was the 23rd year for the annual gathering, which is held in the various counties where farm women societies are located.

The rally is meant to be a fun day that begins at 11 a.m. and ends at 3:30 p.m. This year's entertainment included vocal selections by Michele McGowan who sang "oldies but goodies" of the different stages that women experience throughout life.

Bonnie Marie Lucas, costume designer and performer, modeled "Silhouettes." Lucas said, "Behind every pair of eyes and behind every dress is a memory." Beginning with the attire of 1890, Lucas traveled through history by fashioning a wardrobe with the same basic black dress. The audience gasped in amazement as she modeled the stylish attire and kept a running dialogue of when "a women's job was to be a lady."

The luncheon ended following a program by a local musical high school group, "Reflections."

Coordinators of the event were Mary Rossman, left, and Lois Hughes, both from Cambria County.



The Reflections quartet wasn't all seriousness. They stole the show with a comedy rendition.

These county farm women members admit that the shenanigans that happen on the trip to Altoona made the van ride the best part of the whole day. From left, Grace Landis, Lancaster; Mildred Eshelman, Landisville; Mildred Greider, Mount Joy; and Lavina Musser, Lancaster.

Sewing & Crafts For Profit

The Ins And Outs Of A Home-Based Business

BY LOU ANN GOOD

Pottstown (Berks) — For both the seasoned and the novice home-entrepreneur, the one day seminar sponsored by Berks and Montgomery extension services on Tuesday at the Sunnybrook Ballroom, Pottstown, was crammed with information. Lectures and workshops by professionals on the subject provided participants with the ins and outs of "Sewing and Crafts for Profit."

Dr. Allan and Judy Smith, co-editors of numerous books on sewing for profit, told how to price and package products for business success. He stated that only 3 to 5% of the women who try to market their handicrafts do it successfully.

Many home-based workers are good at producing their product but they aren't good at marketing. To be successful, you must find a way to do both even if depends upon hiring a business associate.

He urged the audience to decide how successful they want to be. He asked, "Are you prepared to give up your social life and adapt your family life to make way for a sewing or craft business?

To be successful, would-be entrepreneurs must find a need and fill it. Consumers are motivated by originality and practicality. If there isn't a market, no matter how clever or cute a product is, you can't make a profit.

Packaging can escalate sales of products. Labels are important. Packaging does many things: protect, display, mail, advertise and instructions in required.Smith commented that L'eggs derived most of their success from the clever packaging of their panyhose into plastic eggs. On the other hand, some items cost more to package than to produce.

Prices are determined by recording how much the material costs. Decide where you can purchase the best materials at the lowest prices. Watch for close-out sales.

Consider the following: How much time is involved? How much profit is expected and will the item sell at this price? Is your price competitive with similar products on the market? Mark-up for store items is usually 33⅓ to 50%, but home-based businesses usually need to be willing to take less, especially when first beginning.

Ask yourself, "Does producing the goods make me feel good?" If you don't enjoy making something, it isn't the business to pursue. Can it be mass produced? After all these questions are answered, it may be evident that some items are not practical for the market.

Organizers of the seminar Michelle Rodgers, Berks County extension home economist, center; and Nancy Stevens, Montgomery home economist, right; chat with Judy Smith who with her husband has published numberous books on sewing for profit.

Innovative ideas never end. Marion End of Perkiomenville plans to market her Super Shopper, a coupon filing and rebate system.

Dr. Allan Smith examines a sewing project by Susan Hess who questions how much she should charge.

Sue Cleaver and Mary Jane Chronister of York attended the seminar to learn how to start their own sewing business.

Locating a market

What should you know about selling at craft fairs, flea markets, exhibits and on consignment? Freida Terrel, crafts marketing specialist from North Carolina State University cooperative extension, told participants that proper marketing gives the greatest return for time and material and converts merchandize into money. Therefore, avoid flea markets because those customers are looking for bargains.

Three markets exist:

•Retail — selling directly to the customer.

Provides location, insurance coverage, liability coverage. Displays a variety of merchandize to attract customers. Has advertisement and promotion. Mark up not all profit since seller usually requires 50% of the selling price.

Stores are relunctant to carry items if they know customers can purchase items from you at a lower price.

Fairs, Shows, Festivals

Avoid pitfalls by checking out the following:

•How long has the fair been running?
•Is is a juried show?
•From what area do customers come.
•Where it is advertised?
•Average gross sale of exhibitors?
•How much does average customer buy or spend?
•Repeat customers?
•Entry fee?
•Legal requirements, such as sales tax?
•Provisions in case of rain?
•Is staff available to assist exhibitors?

Wholesaling

— selling indirectly such as to a shop which in turn sells to customers.

•Conditions for filling order?
•Does shop expect a discount?
•Can you meet delivery date?
•Billing procedure?
•Read and understand the order form.
•Does shop have a tax exempt number or do you need to collect sales tax?

Consignment

This entails giving your work to a retail shop that reimburses you after the item is sold. Check state laws for selling on consignment as it varies from state to state.

•Craft person gets exposure to market.
•Can lead to wholesale sales.
•Can test market demand.
•Craft person receives higher share if item sales. Retailer may keep only 30 to 40%.

Drawbacks:

•No money until item sold.
•Dealer not motivated to push item since he doesn't have his money tied up in it.
•Dishonest merchant may not pay until long after item is sold.
•Capital is tied up with no assurance that item will sell.
•No control over damage and shopper abuse.

Location of market most critical decision. Need traffic and people. Craft guilds can help. Exhibits are a low cost promotion as are lecturing and teaching. Advertising in magazines, catalogues, newspapers can be costly, but sometimes bring effective results. Some do sewing and crafts by being commissioned to do work for fashion designers, interior decorators, and so forth.

Sucessful business requires organizing and using time well. Segments to consider:

•Keep quality consistent
•Obtain and use finest materials available
•Use good designs and marketable colors
•Look objectively at product. "We have a tendency to fall in love with our projects we need an unbiased opinion from one who is neither a friend or family member.
•Develop skills in design and technique.
•Maintain uniformity and

(Turn to Page B17)

"Farm women in depressed farming areas often turn to doing contract work in their homes," Dr. Kathleen Christensen, left, said. She warned the audience to be aware that some companies take advantage of these. Seated beside her are Gerry Kock, center, Pottstown, and Barbara Tribett, Boyertown.

Home-Based Business

individuality
•Eye to improve
•Consider consumer. Can enough people buy it? Or afford it?

Women and home-based work

Dr. Kathleen Christensen, director of the national project of home-based work at CUNY Graduate School, author or books on the subject, gave an informative speech based on surveys with 14,000 women and 100 in-depth interviews nationwide. Of this total, 7,000 worked at home; 7,000 wanted to; only half of them had children, many were approaching retirement. These women often undervalued their skills and charge too little because they felt tension for charging for something they considered a hobby. She said, "They need to change the definition of themselves and think as business persons.

Women also tend to find conflicts with family and schedules. There is that constant struggle between mothering and work obligations. If their business grows, they find it hard to let go and let others do some of the work.

In her studies, Christensen found that women in home-based businesses needed the sense of having separate space, a room that was off-limits to the rest of the family.

Clients are more likely to take advantage of those who work at home by trying to pay less. Friends and family members are more prone to stop by without appointments. Christensen urged, "Set certain hours for clients." If clients complain about charges, say, "I don't think you can afford me. I'm very good at what I do and I deserve these prices. I do have overhead such as electricity and electric." Fringe benefits must be built into expenses.

Christensen said more women with jobs that demand a rigid schedule with little flexibility turn to home-based work. They believe home-based work is the perfect way to balance work and family. Unfortunately, if women fail to plan, they may soon become disillusioned.

Some women, particularly in the mid-west farm crisis belt, have contracted with companies to do their work at home. These jobs often pay by the piece and expected them to meet a daily work quota. They are paid no benefits. Often these companies make out financially like a bandit. Christensen is against the fradulent use of contracting. In such cases, she pointed out it is illegal and the women should be considered employees and not self-employed. Nevertheless, there are legal and beneficial jobs in contracting. Women with limited options find contracting attractive.

Many organizations exist for those who are considering starting a home-based business. Contact the Chamber of Commerce, SCORE, Small Business Administration and the extension offices for more information. Business colleges often offer free consultation.

IRS

If you claim business' expenses, you must show a profit in 2 out of five years.
•Keep accurate books and records.
•Profit potential.
•Register your business name with the county clerk.
•Purchase business cards and stationery.
•Open a business bank account and show a financial statement.
•Get a business phone.

The seminar provided an extensive information packet for women interested in home-based businesses. There were some left over copies which the extension service will mail to those on a first come, first served basis. If you would like one write to one of the following addresses: Berks Co. Extension Services, Berks Agricultural Center, P.O. Box 520, Leesport, PA 19533 or Montgomery Co. Extension Services, Box 20, Creamery, PA 19430.

PROVIDING A HOME INCREASINGLY DIFFICULT

* In 1978, the typical home buyer had to make a down payment of about 1/3 of his or her household income; by 1985, the share had risen to 50%. (Joint Center for Housing Studies JCHS , MIT, 1986)

* For an average 30-year-old male in 1973, the median priced home would have absorbed 21% of monthly pay; in 1984, the median priced home absorbed 44% of his monthly income. (JEC, December 1985)

* After steadily climbing for decades, the rate of home ownership has declined during the 1980's. Hardest hit are younger households; between 1981 and 1985, ownership rates for householders under 25 years of age declined by about 16%, for householders 25-29 by 10%, and for householders 30-34 by 8%. (JCHS, 1986)

* The median rent burden (rent plus heating payments) increased from 20% of household income in 1970 to 29% in 1983. The share of households with rent burdens below 1/4 of their income dropped from 60% in 1974 to 40% in 1983. The share of households with rent burdens above 75% of income rose from 8% to 13%. (JCHS, 1986)

* In 1983, the median rent burden for households in the lowest income quintile had risen to 46% of income, up from 35% in 1974, and in 1983 over 1/4 of the households in this group had rent burdens above 3/4 of income. (JCHS, 1986)

* Given current demographic and housing trends, between 1983 and 2003, the total number of low-rent units in America is projected to fall from 12.9 million to 9.4 million, a 27% loss. During the same period, the total number of households needing low-rent units is projected to increase from 11.9 million to 17.2 million, a 44% increase.

Lebanon Talent Gears Up For Auction

BY LOU ANN GOOD

LEBANON — Watch out! The Lebanon rural community is at it again. They're rounding up a lot of local talent and capitalizing on collectible mania to put on one of the best auctions ever to be held on June 11, at the Lebanon Area Fairgrounds located at the corner of Cornwall and Rocherty Roads.

Winross trucks, the hottest auction item to hit the East Coast, promises to add some excitement to the bidding. Marty Weaver, coordinator of the sale, which benefits the area New Covenant Christian School, reported that 22 of the limited edition trucks will be auctioned. He said, "Of special interest to local buyers are one from White Oak Mills, another from Paul Kurtz, and one from Binkley and Hurst of which only 30 models were made."

Winross trucks are manufactured by a small family-owned firm in Rochester, N.Y. The small replicas duplicate the precision detail found in the over-the-road 18-wheelers and in the logos that advertise their wares. The original purpose of the trucks is not for collectible purposes but for businesses to order small qualities, which they give to employees and sell to customers for approximately $30. But no sooner do they hit the market than their resale value usually jumps to $200 and up.

Local talent

Lorraine Reiff, who farms with her husband Wilmer in at 675 South Lingle Avenue in Palmyra, is one of the talented persons whose handicraft promises to bring in top dollars. She is a master craftperson of intricately carved three dimensional pictures.

Her 30x49-inch picture features a roadside market scene with two Amish women selling produce to a consumer. A picturesque farm nestles in the background of the rolling hills while a creek winds through a meadow. A windmill fashioned from wire hangers and thin metal stretches toward the sky. Trees with bark and painted metal sponges give a realistic leafy appearance to the trees. A horse and wagon parked in front of the stand is filled with cantalopes. When one looks at the picture, you can almost hear the ducks squawking as they hover around the parked wagon. Detail is exemplified in items like the old-fashioned scale that hangs from the stand's rafters and in the sign posts that point to Hee Haw Valley and Duck Lane.

Besides Lorraine's picture, Abner Zook's 3-D picture of a Grain Threshing scene will be sold at 1 p.m. Approximately 20 quilts, and several wall hangings, afghans, comforters and crib quilts will be sold at 12:15. Anna Weaver, a Cornwall seamtress, has donated a framed Noah's Ark cross stitch sampler.

Other collectibles to be auctioned at 2 p.m. include a figurine autographed by Shirley Temple Black, Norman Rockwell bells and figurines, several farm toys in a scale of 1/16th and also toy riding tractors.

A full-sized handcrafted grandfather's clock with West German Works, brass works, triple chimes from St. Michael, Whittington, and Westminster with a Moon dial and lyre pendulum was made by Elias Gingrich.

Interested persons may preview sale items May 28 at the Lebanon Plaza and on Friday, from 4 to 7 p.m. while crafts and plants will be sold during a chicken barbecue at the fairgrounds. For the children, pony rides will be available from 4 to 8 p.m.

For more information, call 717/273-5673, 865-4549 or 274-3703.

Marty Weaver, coordinator for the sale, checks the items listed on the sale bill.

The 3-dimension picture by Lorraine Reiff features a roadside market scene.

Aber Zook agains shows his craftmanship in the 3-D Grain Threshing scene.

Twenty-two Winross trucks are slated to go to the highest bidder at the June 10 sale.

A dated Noah's ark sampler will make a prized addition to the highest bidder.

Precision detail is evident in the grandfather's clock made by Elias Gingrich.

Lorraine Reiff, carved The Old Stone Mill 3-D picture in between milking 60 cows on their Palmyra dairy farm. The picture will be sold privately.

NEW FIBER DEVELOPMENT
Philadelphia College of Textiles & Science to the Penn State Cooperative Extension

A new fiber, Hydrofil, is the first hydrophilic nylon fiber to be successfully marketed. Hydrophilic fibers have a high degree of moisture absorption whereas hydrophobic fibers are water-repellent. Developed by Allied Fibers this copolymer has comfort properties similar to natural fibers and in addition, nylon's strength, durability, styling flexibility , and ease of care.

Fabrics made from this new nylon based fiber derive their cotton-like properties from the copolymer's molecular structure, rather than surface treatments or fiber shapes. This fiber is finding application in combination with fibers already on the market.

The inside component, worn next to the skin, is a hydrophobic brushed fiber. The hydrophilic nylon component is used on the outside. The skin's moisture is pulled through the brushed material by the hydrophilic nylon on the outside, leaving the inside material warm and dry. It has nylon-like behavior at 65 per cent humidity, 70 degrees F. and the ability to act like cotton at 95 percent humidity, 90 degrees F. These attributes aid in wicking, vapor transport, and rapid drying.

Hydrofil matches or exceeds certain properties of nylon 6 such as, abrasion resistance, knitting performance, stain resistance, dye uniformity, flammability, mildew resistance, and static resistance. It became fully commercial in 1987 when it was marketed in W.L. Gore's Dryline fabric for gloves, garment liners, and thermal underwear. Other manufacturers are now working with the fiber so expect future introductions to include woven linings, medical products, lingerie fabrics, stretch fabrics, sheeting, and hosiery.

TIP: A new hydrophilic fiber, Hydrophil, has comfort properties similar to natural fibers and in addition, nylon's strength, durability, styling flexibility, and ease of care.

THE MICRO WAY

LANI BLOOMER

What's the most popular microwaved food? You guessed it — baked potatoes. How about restaurant food? Baked potatoes again rank high, both as a side dish and as a main entree. (In fact, one survey reports that in the South, stuffed or twice-baked potatoes are preferred over other entrees by 44 percent of restaurant goers.)

Maybe next time you're tempted to go to a restaurant, you'll want to stay home and make one of today's quick and easy stuffed potato recipes.

But first, a few words about microwaving perfect baked potatoes. Choose a "baking" potato, such as russet; a white-skinned skinned potato; or an all-purpose potato. The dry, fluffy mealiness and the oval shape of these kinds make perfect micro-baked potatoes.

Scrub potatoes and pierce them in a few spots with a fork or sharp knife. Arrange potatoes in a doughnut shape with the largest parts to the outside. If you like a slightly drier potato, set potatoes on a paper towel or a microwave meat rack/trivet to prevent moisture from collecting underneath. If you prefer potatoes more like oven-baked (and if you aren't watching your sodium intake) roll potatoes in salt before microwaving — the salt dries out the skin during cooking.

Microwave potatoes on High, allowing three to four minutes per potato. Time will vary, depending not only on the size of potato and wattage of your microwave, but also on how moist and fresh the potatoes are.

To test for doneness, pierce potato with a fork. It should still feel slightly firm in the center. A potato will continue to cook once microwaving has stopped, so the center will be perfectly done after 5 to 10 minutes of standing time. Cover it or wrap in foil during the standing time to hold in heat. (If the skin is shriveled, the potato is overcooked and may end up with some hard chewy edges. Next time, cook slightly less.)

Stuffed baked potatoes, like the recipes below, are a wonderful convenience food. Make them ahead and refrigerate or freeze. I arrange them in a doughnut shape on a microwave-safe serving plate, cover with plastic wrap and refrigerate. Or I overwrap the plastic wrap with heavy-duty freezer foil and freeze them. When I want a quick dinner or a side dish, I just have to remove the foil, microwave and bring the potatoes to the table. A plateful of four to six large potato halves heats in about 6 to 8 minutes; or if frozen, in about 12 minutes.

Barbecue Cheddar Stuffed Potatoes

1 large baking potato
2 tablespoons milk
1 tablespoon butter
¼ teaspoon onion powder
Salt and pepper to taste
½ cup shredded Cheddar cheese
2 to 3 tablespoons prepared barbecue sauce

Scrub potato and pierce skin twice with fork. Place on a paper towel or microwave meat rack. Microwave (High) 4 to 5 minutes, turning potato over halfway through cooking. Potato is done when pierced with a fork, it feels slightly firm in the center. Let stand, wrapped in foil or covered, about 10 minutes or until easy to handle. Cut in half lengthwise and carefully remove potato pulp, leaving about ¼ -inch of pulp to form a shell around skin. Set shells aside. Mash potato pulp; add milk, butter, onion powder; season to taste with salt and pepper. Stir in cheese. Fill potato shells and place on microwave-safe serving plate. Using a spoon handle, make 2 indentations in top of each potato. Spoon barbecue sauce into indentations and evenly over potato tops. Cover with waxed paper. Microwave (High) 1½ to 2 minutes or until hot. Makes 2 servings.

Each serving: 255 calories, 10g protein, 16g fat, 19g carbohydrate, 405mg sodium, 46mg cholesterol.

TO FREEZE AND REHEAT: After stuffing, do not cook. Cover tightly and freeze. To serve: Microwave still-frozen potato, covered with plastic wrap, on Medium (50% power 325-350 watts), allowing 2½ to 4 minutes for each large potato half.

Easy Meal Stuffed Potatoes

4 medium baking potatoes
½ cup dairy sour cream
½ pound mild lean pork sausage
½ cup chopped onions
½ cup chopped green pepper
1½ teaspoons curry powder
Salt to taste
Paprika

Scrub potatoes and pierce skin twice with fork. Arrange in a circle on paper towels or a microwave meat rack. Microwave (High) 14 to 16 minutes or until almost done, turning potatoes over halfway

Sarah and Chris Miller share a happy moment with one of the toddlers she watches in her day-care center.

A Talent For Loving Brought A Job For Sarah

BY LOU ANN GOOD

MANHEIM — Sarah Miller, wife of Chris Miller who is a dairyman for one of Kreider's Dairy Farms in Manheim, wanted to earn a little extra green stuff, but more importantly, she wanted to stay home with her family as she earned it.

She tallied her talents and knew that love was one thing she had to give. She also recognized a growing need for adequate child care. Three years ago, after considerable thought and planning, Sarah launched her own child day-care center in her home.

What does one need to get started?

"Lots of love," Sarah maintains. "If you don't love kids, don't try it."

But Sarah needs a lot more than love to run a smooth day-care that is licensed to care full time for six children. She contacted the Department of Public Welfare at the Bureau of Child and Youth Development in Harrisburg. They gave her information on how to get a license. She got the required health physical, passed the child abuse and criminal checks that the state makes on all licensed day care workers and filled out the required paperwork.

After all the requirements were met, Sarah ran an ad in a local newspaper for one week. And all openings were filled. The first child arrives at her home at 6:15 a.m. and the last one leaves about 6:30 p.m.

"I'm fortunate," Sarah remarks, "I have great parents to work with. They can make or break a babysitting arrangement."

Between snacks, mealtimes, and naps, the children enjoy both inside and outside playtimes, singalong with tapes and watch kids' videos. She prepares both breakfast, and lunches, which include food from all four food groups. As with licensed day care centers, the government reimburses Sarah for the food needed to feed her charges. A monitor from the food program periodically checks up on the snacks and meals Sarah serves.

Sarah sets guidelines to keep playtime under control. Running in the house is a no-no. And certain rooms in the rambling farmhouse are off-limits to little hands and feet. Parents agree on the proper discipline for their child.

Sarah prefers preschoolers. "I love babies," she said as she gave one of her charges a squeeze. "A lot of day care centers won't take them, I don't understand why. It's so much fun to watch them learn new things. They give me a lot of pleasure."

Still there are days when Sarah feels overwhelmed by changing diapers, wiping running noses and feeding her preschoolers. With so many children, there is tattling, scrapping with each other and running in the house. But then, "One of them will come running, wrap their arms around me and say, "I love you, Sarah."

Sarah's eyes light up as she says, "That makes everything worthwhile."

through cooking. Let stand, wrapping in foil or covered, about 10 minutes or until easy to handle.

While potatoes stand, prepare rest of filling. Break up sausage into mircowave-safe 1-quart casserole or measure. (If sausage is in casing, remove casing.) Add onion and green pepper. Microwave (High) 3 to 4 minutes or until sausage is no longer pink, stirring once. Drain; stir in curry powder and set aside.

Cut each potato in half lengthwise and carefully remove potato pulp, leaving about a ½-inch thickness of pulp around skin to form a shell. Set shells aside. Mash potato pulp; stir in sour cream until smooth. Stir in sausage mixture and season to taste with salt. Fill potato shells and place on microwave-safe serving plate. Sprinkle with paprika. Cover with waxed paper. Microwave (High) 3 to 5 minutes or until hot. Makes 4 large main dish-servings.

Each serving: 324 calories, 18g protein, 14f fat, 33g carbohydrate, 55mg sodium, 69mg cholesterol.

TO FREEZE AND REHEAT: After stuffing, do not cook. Cover tightly and freeze. To serve: Microwave still-frozen potato or potatoes, covered with plastic wrap, on Medium (50% power 325-350 watts), allowing 2 to 4 minutes for each large potato half.

Questions and answers -

Q. How do you keep foods, like fish sticks, crisp?

A. The best way to keep fish sticks crisp is to use a microwave browning dish/skillet. Regular fish sticks microwaved without it will produce soggy results. If you have a browning dish/skillet, check the booklet that came with it and follow those timings and directions. Each browning dish/skillet is different and uses different preheat and cooking times. In general, preheat time is short (2 to 4 minutes, depending on amount of fish and type of browning dish) and cooking time on each side is only a minute or two.

With other foods using a loose cover — such as waxed paper — or no cover, helps promote some crispness. For example a waxed paper cover on crumb-coated chicken and no cover on apple or rhubarb crisp gives them a "baked" texture, with some crispness.

Do you have a question about microwave cooking? Send it to Microwave Minutes, c/o Extra Newspaper Features, P.O. Box 6118, Rochester, MN 55903. Please include a self-addressed, stamped, business-size envelope.

Recipes in this column are tested in 600- and 650-watt microwave ovens. With an oven of different wattage output, timings may need slight adjustment.

Research has found that calcium from chocolate milk is absorbed equally as well as calcium from other dairy foods such as whole milk, cheese and yogurt. The oxalates, calcium blockers, in chocolate milk can be safely ignored. Also some people who absorb calcium adequately from food sources may be less able to utilize the calcium from calcium carbonate.

WHAT ARE WET BREWERS GRAINS?

Wet brewers grains are the portion of the grains that remain following the extraction of carbohydrates that takes place in the brewing process. They provide protein, fat and unextracted carbohydrates as well as essential minerals.

24 foot Ruff Neck trailer on left is Eby's workhorse. Trailer on the right is an economical, 16 foot Wrangler.

Get outstanding value in EVERY Eby trailer.

Whether it's a top-of-the-line Ruff Neck or an economical Wrangler, you know your livestock trailer is built to last if it's from Eby.

Aluminum construction is one of the main reasons these trailers are so durable and reliable. They'll never rust through or need welding. In fact, without ever being painted, an Eby livestock trailer will stay looking new for years.

Standard features make your Eby trailer a profitable investment. Extra-heavy axles, brakes, wheels and tires. Thick aluminum sheet flooring. Sturdy posts and rails. Even an aerodynamically designed front end is standard.

And, while standard features make even the economical Eby Wrangler far more than an average economy-model, we custom-build everything we make. So you tell us what you want. Choose from a long list of options. Select those features you need for your particular operation. Whether it's a Wrangler or deluxe Ruff Neck, the trailer you buy will be the trailer you need.

Call or write for more information and the name of the Eby dealer nearest you.

HESSTON THE PRIME LINE

Tight, uniform bales from a maneuverable center-line baler!

Hesston Beeline Baler... Model 4600 (14" x 18")

The Model 4600 Beeline Baler uses Hesston's exclusive Center-line design to move crop straight through from pickup to finished bale No cross augers or sweep arms that means less maintenance and high capacity baling

Hesston's exclusive preformed flake system means better hay distribution throughout the bale Bales break open evenly when feeding time comes and, because of the positive bale-length control, mechanical bale stacking is precise and easy

Field and road position are one in the same so you save time opening fields and transporting

Vegetable growers : let air work for you with the Cannon from BERTHOUD

- The swivel head can be moved in any direction from the tractor seat

The Cannon aims chemicals on target every time!

- More air : Its exceptionally powerful 39 inch fan delivers an air speed of 280 M PH
- Spray like the helicopters : With the Cannons 130 ft spray swath and application rates down to 5 G P.A
- Save time and money : By reducing field travel and ground compaction
- Improve penetration : With the Cannons fine air mist that ruffles the leaves for complete coverage with no wasteful chemical run off
- Unlike no other 3 pt air machine the Cannons compact design gives it a close center of gravity to the tractor

Let us demonstrate the winner in self-propelled harvesting.

If you custom harvest as well as chop your own forage, a self-propelled harvester like the Model 1900 could help you harvest more crop at peak quality. The fuel-efficient 270-horsepower diesel engine and the 24-inch, 12-knife cutterhead give you high capacity for day in and day out harvesting And an interchangeable crophead system features one auger base feed system that lets you mount either a four- or five-row cornhead or a Super-Sweep windrow pickup.

Stop in and let us show you the other features of this Whopper Chopper Or better yet, let's set up a time to demonstrate this harvester in your own field

RICHARDTON
A GREAT CONCEPT JUST GOT BETTER!
Richardton Mfg. Company Introduces The MODEL 700 MULTI-PURPOSE DUMP WAGON

Many area farmers are quickly realizing the potential danger and liability of transporting forage with conventional tractor-drawn wagons. Consider the RICHARDTON Dump Wagon/farm truck approach.

* Increased speed from field to barn
* Brakes, turning signals, lights provide increased traffic safety
* Equipment cost/amt. of forage handled is less than conventional systems

Replace three or more forage boxes with one RICHARDTON Dump

MULTI-PURPOSE DUMP WAGON
BIG, STRONG, ECONOMICAL - The Big Orange One

• Works For You • All Year Long • Wet Field Conditions • Variety of Crops

The Most Versatile High Dump Wagon

Thousands of farmers can't be wrong. Many farmers still operate the Richardton High Dump Wagon they bought nearly 15 years ago. They say they'll buy a new one if the old one wears out. Other farmers own two or three Richardton Wagons and use them crop after crop, season after season. Ask the man who owns one.

You May Think They Are Higher Priced Than Forage Boxes — But You May Be Surprised!

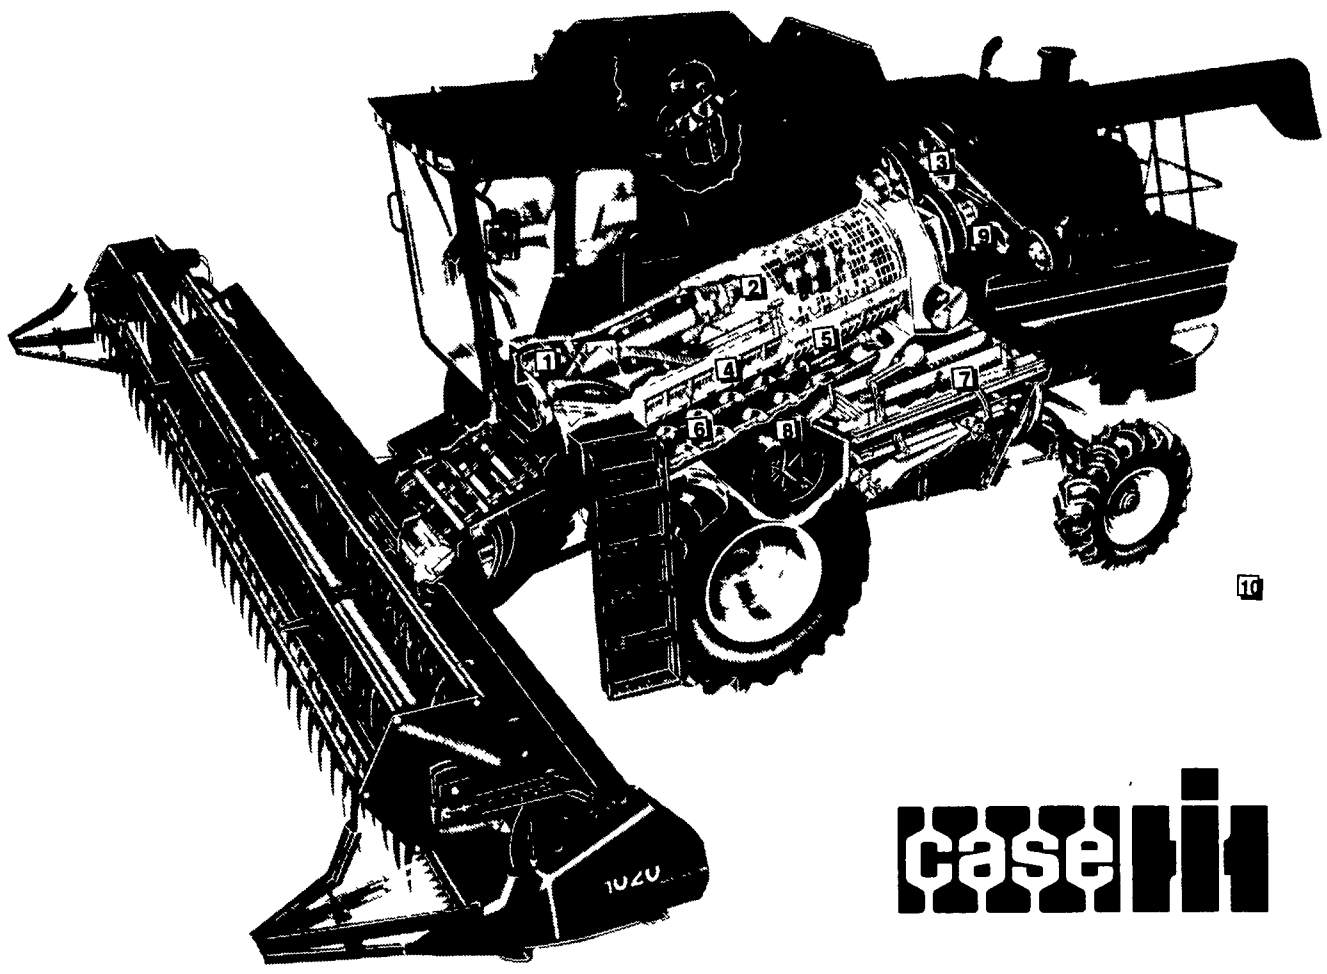
DIFFERENT and BETTER
from the inside out



case IH

HERE'S THE INSIDE DIFFERENCE:

1. An impeller on the front of the rotor draws the crop and air into the rotor and threshing cage.
2. The single rotor threshes and separates the crop. Speed of rotation can be adjusted on the go.
3. Torque-sensing rotor drive automatically regulates belt tension in relation to load.
4. Three-section concaves can be removed and reinstalled by one man in less than 30 minutes. Small-wire and large-wire concaves are available to match different crops. Clearance is easily adjusted with a ratchet handle.
5. A variety of separating grates are available to best handle almost any crop you'll be harvesting.
6. Augers move the grain smoothly, positively to the cleaning sieves. Grain can't bunch up, even on steep hillsides.
7. Opposed-action adjustable sieves remove chaff from the grain.
8. Advanced-design cleaning fan with variable speed drive removes any chaff and foreign material that remains.
9. Positive discharge beater propels straw rearward to the straw spreaders. (Straw chopper is optional.
10. Wide spread twin-rotor straw spreaders distribute discharge material uniformly and can be removed in seconds for windrowing material.

Strengthen And Reseal Your Silo With Shotcrete

S & S Silo Service Has Experience
Over 160 Silos Have Been Relined With Shotcrete

S&S Silo Service prepares the silo surface by using a 3,000 lb. pressure washer, thus making the silo moist, making a much better surface to bond shotcrete. After shotcreting, S&S always takes away any roughness by applying a steel trowel finish.

The excellent bonding of shotcrete to the silo will keep out moisture and prevent mold from growing on the side of the silo.

Growth Agents on the Horizon

Swine producers are asking a lot of questions about the coming generation of growth promotants. And they should. The products are different than anything we're now using in the hog industry. The effects on performance and carcass quality are almost beyond belief. And we're inundated with a new set of terms -- biotechnology, repartitioning agents, beta-agonists, and somatotropin to name a few. Let's take a look at these products, their effects on the hog and on the industry.

PORCINE SOMATOTROPIN

The product that provides the best response and seems to be getting most of the press is porcine somatotropin (PST), another name for pig growth hormone. At moderate doses, PST will improve growth rate and feed efficiency by roughly 20%. If given to pigs from 60 to 220 pounds, PST would reduce the time to market by 2 weeks and save about 115 pounds of feed per head. At the same time, pigs receiving PST will have .2 inch less backfat and loin eyes that are 1 square inch larger.

There are some other "nice" things about PST. Since it's identical to the growth hormone produced by the pigs pituitary gland, it leaves no residue. And even if it did, it would have no effect on a consumer eating pork from a treated pig.

But PST has it's drawbacks. Because it's a protein, feeding the stuff is out of the question. The stomach would digest it like any other protein. That leaves injection as the only way for getting PST into the pig. All the research that we read and hear about has been with daily injections.

It's difficult for me to imagine injecting several hundred pigs every day, let alone several thousand. Surprisingly, many of the people that plan to market PST say that daily injections aren't that bad and hope that producers will agree. The companies have been developing special multiple dose syringes and even back slap syringes to make things a little easier.

For the producer that "just says no" to daily injections, implants of some kind are apparently being developed. However, implants and PST don't make a smooth combination. Once PST is dissolved and at body temperature, the hormone tends to fall apart or change into something that has no effect on performance. That doesn't mean an "implant" won't be available. But it does mean that the injection will still have to be given fairly often (like every 2 weeks). And the response will be less.

Another drawback with PST is a potential lameness problem. In Terry Etherton's research at Penn State, pigs on high doses have had a lot of mobility problems toward the end of the finishing period. We're not certain why, however Pitman-Moore, a company involved in PST production, claims that lameness is not a problem if high doses are avoided and pigs are injected only during the finishing period. However, Dan Hagen and Keith Bryan, also at Penn State, observed soundness problems with gilts that weren't started on treatment until about 200 pounds.

Another glitch with PST is that a few pigs in some trials have died shortly after the injection. It may be a while before we find the cause since the deaths occur after many injections, and the actual mortality rate is extremely low. At Penn State we've also seen some pigs on PST die of ulcers. We don't know if the ulcers were related to the PST.

PST will probably not be marketed for sows in the near future for a couple of reasons. It does save feed during lactation. And it does help the sow produce milk more efficiently. But it seems to have little if any effect on piglet weaning weights. And it decreases backfat and sow feed intake during lactation -- two effects that would be difficult to sell when the current theory promotes higher feed intake and less fat loss.

BETA AGONISTS

These compounds are manmade and similar to adrenaline. Like PST, they improve growth and feed efficiency. They also reduce fat and increase muscle in the carcass. Compared to PST, the changes in performance are less dramatic. But since the beta agonists are not proteins, they can be included in the feed.

Cimaterol & Clenbuterol

Both of these compounds are added to the feed at very low levels (.20 to .50 ppm). Growth rate and feed efficiency are both improved 5 to 10 percent. Loin eye areas are increased about .5 square inches and backfat is reduced .1 to .2 inches. One drawback to these compounds is that they increase heart rate up to twice normal rate, probably because of their similarity to adrenaline. Another problem, particularly with cimaterol, is an increase in hoof lesions and cracks.

L 644,969 & CI 263, 780

These two compounds, with the strange names, appear to support greater changes in growth performance than cimaterol and clenbuterol. Studies show that feeding 1 ppm improves feed conversion by 10 to 12 percent. Backfat is reduced about .1 inches and loin eye area is increased about .5 square inches. Improvements to average daily gain have not been reported.

Ractopamine

Of the beta agonists, a lot of people think that ractopamine shows the most promise. At 20

Success Marks Bull Test Sale

ITHACA, NY — The Bull Olympics '88 is now history. This year's New York State Bull Test Sale averaged approximately $2,344 with the highest bulls being a Black Angus from Ballantrae Farms of Westfield selling for $5,000 and purchased by Richard Milk of Byron, New York, and a Reg Angus owned by Ken Marquis of Ithaca also sold for $5,000. This bull was purchased by Ted Antol of Hopewehl, Virginia.

Bidding was brisk. Auctioneer Col. John Spiker of West Virginia kept the pace rolling. Thirty-six bulls were sold at the New York State Bull Test Sale which was sponsored by the New York Beef Cattlemens Association, Department of Ag & Markets, Department of Animals Science at Cornell University.

The top-selling Simmental owned by Blue Chip Farm of Warren, Pennsylvania, was purchased by Paul Wood of Gillette, Pennsylvania, for $3,300.

Top sellers in their respective breeds were: Charolais: Cooper Charolais Farm bull born 4/1/87 was sold for $3,000 and purchased by Curtis Kundert of Wallkill, New York. Gelbvieh: Lucas Farms of Cazenovia bought a bull owned by Elmer Newman of DeKalb Junction, New York, for $1,850. Shorthorn: Springbrook Farm of Parish, New York, sold a 3/1/87 bull for $2,300 to Sunrise Farms of Auburn. Simmental: $3,300 took a Blue Chip Stock Farm of Warren, Pennsylvania, bull born 4/1/87. It was purchased by Paul Wood of Gillett, Pennsylvania. Polled Hereford: Virgil Phelps of Oakfield, New York, purchased the Dunwalke/Puddingstone bull from New Jersey for $4,800. This bull also received a special award from the National Polled Hereford Association for top gaining hereford. The award was presented to Dunwalke/Puddingstone Farm prior to the bull being sold. Overall, the sale, which had standing room only was very successful and all who were involved with the sale were pleased with the outcome. Chairman of the sale was Steve Gotovich. Bull Test Director was Bill Greene of the Cooperative Extension Livestock Department.

Delaware Valley College Finishes Sixth In Hunt Seat Horse Show

LAURINBURG, NC — The Delaware Valley College Hunt Seat horse show team finished sixth in this spring's Intercollegiate National Horse Show, held at St. Andrews Presbyterian College in Laurinburg, NC, after completing a show season as Region V champion.

Melissa Gordon, a freshman equine science major from Conshohocken, PA, placed highest among DVC students, garnering a second place in the Novice Fence class for her Cartier Cup (hunt seat) team.

Anthony M. DeLise, junior biology major from Doylestown, PA, who earned the highest total points for hunt seat in all of Region V, placed fourth in the Open Flat class and fifth nationally for hunt seat high point rider. Tony is also the captain of the Hunt Seat Team at the College.

The Intercollegiate Horse Show Association is an organization encompassing 12 regions and approximately 152 colleges from 26 states and Canada; it represents over 3,000 riders. Formally established in 1967, its aim is to promote competition for riders at all skill levels, from beginner to show experienced, at both individual and team vantages. Emphasis is on learning, sportsmanship and fun, under the principle that any college student should be able to participate in horse shows regardless of financial status or riding level. Many schools provide mounts for the students who ride.

Delaware Valley College's recent history with the IHSA Region V has been impressive. Two years ago, it was also Region V champion in the Hunt Seat. The previous year, the Stock Seat Team traveled to Nationals to represent Region V as its champion. The 1988 showing of sixth place in the Nationals is the College's best showing ever, and gives both teams an optimistic outlook for the next year, according to Dr. Fred Hofsaess, chairman of the Department of Animal Science, which hosts the stock and hunt seat teams.

Each region sends a rider to represent it in each of the competition categories, bringing the competition at Nationals to the 12 best collegiate riders in this country. The following students placed in the IHSA Nationals:

Janet E. Distler, an animal science sophomore from Bedminster, PA, placed fifth in the Walk/Trot/Canter class, Hunt Seat.

Jan Egner, an equine science freshman from Quakertown, PA, placed fourth in the Intermediate Flat class, Hunt Seat.

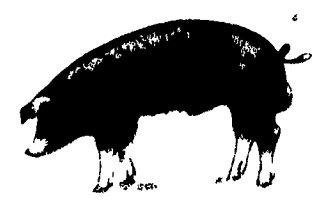
Betty Lollin, a sophomore animal science major from Lebanon, NJ, placed fourth in the Intermediate Fence class, Hunt Seat.

Lisa Wilkoski, a sophomore animal science major from Newton, PA, placed third as an individual qualified rider in the Intermediate Stock Seat class.

Pennsylvania's Boar Testing Program Underway

STATE COLLEGE (Centre) — Pennsylvania's official boar testing program is well underway. There are 20 pens of four boars each that are placed on test from swine producers from throughout the state. This year there are 10 pens of Yorkshires, three pens of Durocs, three pens of Hamshires and one pen each of Berkshires, Landrace, Poland Chinas and Spotted Boars. The four boars in a pen must be by one sire and out of one or two litters. The small boars must be delivered prior to reaching 80 days of age. They are given either a seven- or 14-day adjustment period depending on their size and then they are weighed on official test. Once on test the pigs have unlimited access to a self-feeder. The boars are weighed every 14 days and a progress report is generated for average daily gain, lifetime weight per day of age and pen feed efficiency.

When the pen average weight reaches 230 pounds the pen is taken off test, and the boars are hand fed and exercised daily. The boars will have their final average daily gain calculated and ratioed, the days to 230 pounds will be computed and a final pen feed efficiency and ratio will be determined. The boars will be ultrasonically scanned to determine their backfat thickness and loin eye area. A percent lean cuts value will be determined for each boar and they will have to meet minimum requirements for soundness, underline, and scrotal development. Each boar will have a final index calculated from his average daily gain, feed efficiency and backfat thickness. After all the evaluations, the top 40 to 50 boars will be selected to be sold in Pennsylvania's 11th Performance Tested Boar Sale. The sale is scheduled for the Wednesday evening of Ag Progress Days, August 17, 1988 at 6:00 p.m. The sale will be held in the Ag Arena on the campus of Penn State University.



For more information on the boar testing program, the boars on test or the boar sale contact: Glenn Eberly, Director, Meat Animal Evaluation Center, 651 Fox Hollow Road, State College, PA 16803 or phone (814) 238-2527.

Pork Prose

ppm, this compound increases gains by 11%, and feed conversion by 12%. Muscle mass is increased and total fat is reduced -- both about 10%. Ractopamine can probably be used with PST for a combined effect that's larger than that of either compound alone.

WHAT'S THE COST & WILL THEY PAY?

This has been a mystery. If the companies know what the retail cost of these products will be, they aren't saying. So it's difficult to predict what the pay back will be. However there is a clue that the cost may be so high that improvements in feed efficiency alone won't be sufficient to get a return on investment. I say this because any cost/benefit data published always includes an incentive for carcass quality. But it's probably wrong to assume that every packer will reward producers adequately for improving carcass quality. So until these compounds are on the market we can only guess on the payback.

WHAT WILL BE THE EFFECTS ON THE INDUSTRY?

Some of the critics of PST fear more tons of pork will depress prices enough that small producers won't be able to compete. The companies' response is that everyone will have access to the drug, and so everyone can compete. If we're talking daily injections, the small producer could probably handle that. And the very large producer could probably hire someone full time to do nothing else but make injections. But producers with moderately sized sow herds may be too big to do the injections themselves, yet too small to hire it done.

I'm not sure anyone can predict much hog prices will be depressed with the use of PST or beta agonists. If prices come down, producers may reduce hog numbers, as they have in typical hog cycles, so that prices could eventually come back up. Again we'll have to wait and see what happens.

WHAT WILL THE EFFECT BE ON CONSUMERS?

With the use of these new compounds, the consumer would be getting a product with less fat and more muscle. And surveys show that consumers "have said" they would be willing to pay more for a leaner product. But we need to be careful how much of this carcass improvement the consumer will actually see since most of the external fat is trimmed from loins and hams before they're sold anyway.

WHEN WILL THE NEW GROWTH AGENTS BE AVAILABLE?

No one is saying for sure. But if they're approved, 2 to 3 years from now seems likely.

SUMMARY

PST is a protein that improves feedlot performance and carcass quality. PST must be injected. Beta agonists, which are compounds similar to adrenaline, can be fed and provide the same benefits as PST, but to a smaller degree. These compounds are different that anything we've had in the swine industry since they effect both growth and carcass characteristics.

Until these compounds are marketed, it will be difficult to predict what the payback will be, or how they will affect the industry.

USDA Delays Implementation Of NIR Protein Testing Of Barley

WASHINGTON, DC — The U.S. Department of Agriculture has delayed indefinitely the implementation of barley protein testing by the near-infrared reflectance method.

The new testing method was scheduled to begin May 1, but was delayed because test data indicate additional time is needed to verify the NIR calibration equation by which protein content of barley would be determined.

According to Federal Grain Inspection Service Administrator W. Kirk Miller, FGIS pilot testing during normal barley inspection has shown the calibration needs refinement.

The FGIS Advisory Committee unanimously supports the delay.

Genetically Engineered Plants Pose Negligible Environmental Risk

ITHACA, NY — Field testing and commercial use of genetically engineered plants of major agricultural crops grown in the United States will pose little or no risk to agriculture and the environment, according to a report based on a workshop held at the Boyce Thompson Institute for Plant Research.

Plants created through genetic engineering should "pose no significantly different risks than have been accepted for decades from conventional plant breeding," the report concluded. "If anything, biotechnology ... probably reduces risk."

Boyce Thompson President Ralph W.F. Hardy said that the report, "Regulatory Considerations: Genetically Engineered Plants," is meant to provide government regulators with scientific advice to help them consider rules for field research and commercial use of genetically engineered plants and to inform the public of the results of the workshop.

"The degree of consensus reached in this workshop by biologists, environmentalists and lawyers from academe, government, industry and public interest organizations represents a significant advance toward field testing and commercial use of genetically engineered plants," he said.

The workshop, which was held last October, examined only genetically engineered plants of major U.S. crops that are expected to be ready for commercial introduction within the next five. years. It focused on the release of genetically engineered plants with resistance to herbicides, insect pests and disease, and with other traits, including those that make the plant change the quality and composition of its proteins.

"The science of biotechnology has advanced to the point where what have been only promising lab developments are now potential products awaiting field testing and commercialization," the report noted. "If these many promising products of biotechnology ... are ever to become more than promises, they must prove their safety, and their worth, outside in the real world."

Other key conclusions of the workshop are:

■ Risk assessment should focus on product characteristics, not the processes used to create them — whether genetic engineering or plant breeding. This is in agreement with the 1987 National Academy of Sciences report on "Introduction of Genetically Engineered Organisms into the Environment." Regulatory attention should not focus on the processes included under the umbrella term "biotechnology" but only on the characteristics of the products created from them, the report said.

■ The possibility of genetically modified crop plants becoming weed pests is remote in the United States, because most modern crop plants now in use do not last long without constant pampering (fertilizers, herbicides, seed bed preparation, planting, etc.) and because many herbicides could be used for weed control should genetically altered crop plants turn into weedy plants, the report said.

Based on these conclusions, the report recommended research on both a national and international scale to improve the knowledge base that regulators must use to decide whether to approve the release and use of genetically engineered crop plants.

The suggested research projects include:

■ Creation of detailed maps of the distribution of wild and weedy relatives of the top 15 agricultural crops grown in the United States. Such maps would show precisely where these plants exist, and thus most care should be taken when testing or releasing genetically altered varieties.

■ Once these plants' locations are known, further research should be done on their overall ecology — how their pollen is dispersed, how they transfer genes back and forth through cross-pollination, and who eats them, among other factors.

■ Establishment of a public database of information gained through the suggested research efforts, and the provision of such a database to anyone who needs it.

More than 50 scientists from the United States, Canada and Britain participated in the workshop, "Regulatory Considerations for the Testing and Use of Genetically Engineered Plants: Technical Issues of Specific Near-Term Cases." Besides BTI, sponsors included the National Science Foundation, the U.S. Department of Agriculture, the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, and the Center for Environmental Research, the College of Agriculture and Life Sciences and the Biotechnology Program, all at Cornell University. Boyce Thompson Institute is an independent research organization based at Cornell.

Farmers can view videotapes on farm safety, no-cost production inputs, and soil fertility. Tapes are available from local fertilizer dealers.

Fertilizer Dealers Offer Free Videotapes

MUNDELEIN, Il. — Several hundred fertilizer dealerships and farm supply outlets throughout the country have added a free video loan service to their product lines.

In response to the mushrooming use of home video among farm families, these dealers are offering their customers a selection of farm management videotapes on a free-loan basis. Produced by IMC Fertilizer, Inc., of Mundelein, Illinois, the video programs feature a variety of farm management topics, including Maximum Economic Yield, farm safety, no-cost production inputs and soil fertility.

Fertilizer dealerships are displaying this new ag video service in a specially customized case that includes a synopsis of each tape and a convenient check-out system. In addition to the tapes, IMC Fertilizer is providing postcards that dealers can use to inform their customers about the free video service.

The video display, entitled "The Case For Ag Video" is portable, so it is likely that many dealers will be making the video loan service available at farmer meetings this winter.

For information about this free ag video service, contact your local fertilizer dealer.

Case IH Mower Conditioners Offer High Production

RACINE, WI — Five new mower conditioners from Case IH provide efficient hay production under a variety of field conditions.

The Case IH 8300 Series includes the Models 8320, 8330, 8350, 8370 and 8380. They feature improved design and rugged construction in sizes to meet nearly every farmer's needs.

Key features of the Case IH 8300 Series mower conditioners include high sickle speeds that allow fast working speeds; wide, adjustable, fully engaging conditioner rolls; exceptional header flotation to allow uniform cutting in uneven terrain; rugged header frames and fully adjustable forming shields that allow a choice of windrows of full-width swaths; and double-heat-treated guards for extra long wear.

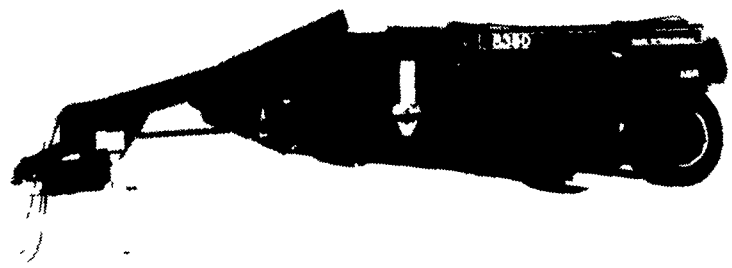
The Model 8320 mower conditioner provides efficiency and durability in an economical 7-foot, 3-inch cutting width. It features 86-inch-wide conditioner rolls, 1,700-strokes-per-minute (SPM) sickle speed and a four-bat reel. Options include a crop divider kit, five- or six-bat reels and a choice of double-forged super guards or stub-on-stub guards.

The Model 8330 provides 110-inch-wide conditioner rolls in a 9-foot, 3-inch cutting width. Combined with the 1,700 SPM sickle speed and rugged, reliable frame, the Model 8330 provides high capacity in an economical, mid-sized mower conditioner.

Side-Pull, 12-Foot Mower Conditioner

A combination of a 12-foot cutting width and a side-pull design makes the Model 8350 an exceptionally economical and simple machine for its capacity.

Like the other 8300 Series models, the Model 8350 includes features that provide performance and maximum flexibility. The machine's 110-inch-wide intermeshing conditioner rolls and fully adjustable swath shield increase productivity and can produce either smooth, quick-drying 9-foot swaths or evenly shaped windrows as needed. Standard features include 1,700 SPM sickle speed, extra sicklebar holder and tool box. Available options include five-bat or six-bat reels, wear plate kit and crop divider kit.



This new Model 8350 mower conditioner features 12-foot cutting width and 110-inch conditioner rolls in an economical sidepull design. The Model 8350 is one of five new mower conditioners from Case IH including the 16-foot cut Model 8380, which respresents a new size class for Case IH.

For maneuverability, the mechanical tongue employs a swing cylinder that changes the machine from field to road positions — all while the operator is seated in the tractor. Transport width in road position is only 13 feet, 6 inches. Hydraulic wheel cylinders provide up to 18 inches of header lift for easy travel to and from the field.

High Capacity Center-Pivot Mower Conditioners

For efficiency in larger operations, Case IH Models 8370 and 8380 feature a center-pivot design that enhances the productivity of their 14- and 16-foot cutting widths. The center-mounted pivot hitch allows a farmer to position the header to either side of the tractor while cutting, or to center it behind the tractor for easy transport.

The Models 8370 and 8380 have 110-inch intermeshing conditioner rolls that provide thorough crushing and crimping for fast drying and aerated windrows. Five-bat reels rapidly feed the hay into dual feed augers that evenly distribute hay across the conditioner rolls.

Both models feature an advanced-design hydraulic sickle drive that permits high-speed cutting for high harvesting capacity. The Model 8370 features a single sickle that operates at 1,670 SPM, for economical, large-capacity cutting. The Model 8380 features a two-sickle system operating at 1,800 SPM to match the productive capacity of its 16-foot cutting width.

Excellent header flotation assures smooth, clean cutting of the hay. An adjustable swath shield provides a choice between fluffy, aerated windrows or a wide, smooth swath.

Pork Checkoff Funds Target Health-Care Professionals, Research/Development Leaders

DES MOINES, IA — Better-than-anticipated collections in the 1987 100 percent Pork Legislative Checkoff will allow the Pork Industry Group of the National Livestock and Meat Board (Meat Board), to do more this year in reaching health-care professionals and research and development leaders concerning the benefits of pork. The National Pork Board, administrator of the checkoff, provides funding for coordinated programs through the National Pork Producers Council and the National Livestock and Meat Board (Meat Board).

At a recent meeting, the National Pork Board appropriated an additional $455,000 to the Meat Board for new and ongoing projects. The funds were generated when first-year checkoff revenues exceeded original projections.

Meat Board programs benefit the nation's pork producers by building a positive image for pork through research and information targeting key audiences including health-care professionals, educators, researchers, food/media professionals, retailers, as well as research, development and marketing personnel with meat packers and processors.

Information/Education

The Meat Board will utilize $325,000 of the grant for a comprehensive program designed to communicate pork's positive attributes to health-care professionals and consumer thought leaders.

Continuing key projects in the area of consumer information include the distribution of pork nutrition kits to dietitians, as well as trade-publication advertising aimed at the health-care industry that emphasizes pork's nutritional value. In 1987, more than 800 dietitians across the country learned about pork during the highly successful informational seminars funded with checkoff dollars. This year, nearly twice the number of dietitians are expected to attend the seminars, increasing the understanding of pork's nutrient composition and benefits in balanced, modified or general diets among this important audience.

Product Development/ Meat Science

Product Development and Meat Science, another major program area of the Meat Board's Pork Industry Group, received $130,000 for the development of a new product technical reference manual that will contain up-to-date information about pork technology and marketing. Specifically designed for research and development personnel at major food companies, meat scientists and others involved in developing specifications for new pork-based products, the handbook will be a comprehensive resource for the new pork product area.

Meat Board retailer program activities on behalf of pork producers include "Meat Features" videos that provide consumers with pertinent pork information at the meat case, as well as point-of-purchase nutrient information. The Meat Board also is involved in development of standard identification and product codes for pork cuts.

Pork producers checkoff dollars are utilized in developing and executing all of these programs.

NEW! RO-CROP CULTIVATOR with the Exclusive "No Wobble" Parallel Links

One of the weaknesses of many cultivators is that the parallel linkage is light weight and bearing areas are small. All too soon the assembly starts to wear and break down. Brillion's NO WOBBLE links are made of cast iron (12 lbs. each). Each end is equipped with full 2" wide non-lube sleeve bearings.

The Brillion "S" tine cultivator (model BRS) with four-way tooth movement is designed for high speed cultivation, especially in conjunction with chemical weed control. The "S" tines also mulch the soil and level the ground for easier harvesting. Available in rigid and folding models for four to 12 rows.

ON THE MOVE... IN TO THE 90's

Alfalfa Weevil Population Heavy This Year

HUNTERDON CO., NJ — The alfalfa weevil is back and he's bad. It is a little early for the weevil, usually they appear around May 20th, but this year heavy infestations have been found as early as May 9. It starts out as a small larva, yellow in color with a small black head. It will feed on alfalfa plants 3 to 4 weeks. During this period they molt, three times. When full grown, they are about ¾ -inch long. Their heads are black; their bodies, green. They have a white strip running down the middle of their backs paralleled by two faint white stripes on either side. In the larva stage, the damage that can be done is quite extensive. Alfalfa leaves contain high-protein content, which the weevil likes. If the infestation is heavy enough, they car literally strip a field bare leaving mostly stems. The average protein content of alfalfa is 17 to 22 percent. As the protein level drops you may have to purchase more feed to bring the protein level up to proper levels for livestock to grow and produce at optimum economic levels. Since protein is one of the most expensive feed stuff to buy this little critter can become an economic disaster.

Usually by the time you can see the weevil and the ensuing damage done to your fields, it is too late to do anything to control it. You should take a special sweep net and walk your fields early in the spring, about once a week. Pick a spot and make 8 to 10 sweeps across the tops of the plants while walking. If there are more than 25 weevils found per sweep, you may wish to treat the fields to kill the weevil. There is a problem here though. By the time you usually find a heavy infestation the hay is probably 1 to 2 feet tall. It may be just as uneconomical to run over a nice crop of hay, which is almost ready to cut, with a spray rig and apply a pesticide, which can cost an additional 8 to 15 dollars per application. Also, the spray will kill the predatory wasp, which is a natural enemy of the weevil. In this instance the recommendation is to cut the hay off as soon as possible after finding a heavy infestation and hope that you can get the hay in without being rained on. Farmers that make haylage have a distinct advantage in this case, since they put the hay into silos at about 50 percent moisture.

Just because you have cut off the hay doesn't mean the little bugger is gone. While the hay is drying they will burrow into the ground and then eat the new regrowth or crowns of alfalfa. It is a good management practice to fertilize hay fields after first cutting so you may wish to spray at this time, saving a trip across the field.

In addition you may wish to contact the Department of Agriculture, Art Brown, secretary, CN-330, Trenton, NJ 08625. (609) 292-8898, and tell them that you have a heavy alfalfa weevil infestation, the farm's location, and that you would like to have the predatory wasp released on or near your farm to help control them. This should be done after you spray so as not to kill the wasp.

There are many ways to fight this little larva which can do so much damage to your alfalfa crop. Just be sure to walk your fields and use a sweep net properly. Like they say you can pay a little now or pay a lot later.

All Cooperative Extension programs are offered without regard to race, color, national origin, sex or handicap.

Forest Management Conference Planned

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre) — "Genetic Considerations in Forest Management - Recent Developments" is the theme of the 31st Northeastern Forest Tree Improvement Conference to be held at Penn State University July 6-8, 1988 at the J.O. Keller Conference Center.

The conference will include recent developments in research and forest practices as discussed by invited speakers and in contributed papers. Forest managers and geneticists can use this forum to exchange information and ideas on silvicultural practices that affect genetic quality, selection methods, impacts on site index and stand yield models, and gene conservation issues. A pre-conference field trip will focus on regeneration problems in mixed oak stands including effects of gypsy moth, deer, small mammals, and competing vegetation.

For more information, contact Kim Steiner, conference chairman, 313 Forest Resources Lab, The Pennsylvania State University, University Park, PA 16802 (814) 865-9351.

PART 2
FARM BUSINESS ANALYSIS-THE ULTIMATE USE OF FARM RECORDS

By Larry Jenkins
Penn State

In my previous column, I discussed the importance of sound record- keeping for successful farm businesses, and outlined common terms in farm business analysis. In this column, I will discuss the various ways you can measure your farm business efficiency.

FARM BUSINESS EFFICIENCY MEASURES: "Production efficiency" relates the amount of output produced by a given combination of inputs, with the goal being to maximize production. "Economic efficiency" is concerned with using resources in a way that maximizes net income.

Before considering products and resources, some thought should be given to the concept of FARM SIZE EFFICIENCY. This idea relates to the view that it is necessary to have at least a minimal volume of business in order to achieve a large enough income to meet business and personal commitments. One should keep in mind that both economies and diseconomies of size exist; economies of size may make larger units more profitable within a range of production, but diseconomies eventually limit profit and will result in even larger units becoming less profitable.

Farm size can be measured in several ways. These include acres operated, total capital managed, gross profit, labor use, and units of livestock managed.

CROP EFFICIENCY: Efficiency in crop production plays an important role in achieving higher farm income. Farm with high crop value per crop-acre have higher net farm income than those with low crop values. This is true even though crop production costs are usually higher on high crop value farms. Above average yields contribute to high crop value per acre.

LIVESTOCK EFFICIENCY: Efficiency in livestock relates primarily to animal production and feed use. Animal production is measured using criteria such as pigs farrowed or weaned per litter, percent calf crop, calf weaning weight per cow, milk produced per cow, eggs per day, and weight gain per day in the case of animals fed for slaughter.

Feed use is an important efficiency measure because feed is the major input for most livestock enterprises. Livestock returns per $100 feed fed is the most common measure of feed efficiency. This efficiency measure can be calculated for a composite of all classes of livestock on a farm but it is most meaningful if there is only one major livestock enterprise.

MACHINERY EFFICIENCY: Efficiency in use of machinery is usually measured as total investment per crop acre and total cost per crop acre. Investment per crop acre is computed by determining average annual machinery investment which is the average of the beginning and ending machinery inventory. Average investment is divided by the number of crop acres to find the investment per crop acre. A smaller investment is usually preferred to a larger one.

LABOR EFFICIENCY: The productive man-work unit is the customary measure of labor efficiency. A productive man-work unit is the amount of work a typical man can accomplish under average farm conditions and working at typical farm tasks for a ten-hour day. Average man-work units for each acre of various crops and each head of livestock have been developed. By multiplying crop acreage by the corresponding man-work units per acre and the number of head of livestock by the man-work units per head, one can determine the expected man-work units required to support the total farm operation. By comparing expected man-work units with the labor actually used on the farm, one can determine if labor use is above or below average; that is, the degree of efficiency in use of labor.

CAPITAL EFFICIENCY: Farming has become more capital intensive during the past two decades and efficiency in use of capital has become more important in determining financial success of the farm business unit. A long-term trend toward higher interest rates indicates that cost of capital will increase through time resulting in the necessity for wise use of capital.

Rate of capital turnover and the rate of return on capital are the most common measures of efficiency for capital. The rate of capital turnover can be measured in terms of the percent turnover each year or in terms of the number of years required to "turn over" total capital investment. The former measure involves dividing gross farm profit by total capital investment and multiplying the result by 100. For example capital turnover is $50,000/$250,000 x 100 or 20 percent per year.

A second approach to rate of turnover is the number of years needed to completely turn capital. This can be determined by dividing total capital investment by the value of farm production for a year. To illustrate this approach, assume value of farm production is $40,000 and capital investment is $120,000. The time required for capital turnover is $120,000/$40,000 or 3.

Generally, a faster rate of turnover (fewer years) is preferred to a longer time. Net income is typically a percentage of gross income (or value of farm production) and a faster rate of capital turnover is the result of a larger gross income.

Search For Top Conservation Farmer

HARRISBURG (Dauphin) — The search is on for the top conservation farmer in Pennsylvania. "We are looking for farmers who conserve their soil and water resources in innovative and cost-effective ways," explained V.C. Miles, state coordinator.

State winners will be entered in the Sixth Annual National Soil and Water Conservation Awards program. This program is sponsored by the National Endowment for Soil and Water Conservation and funded by the DuPont Company.

Anyone or any group in any Pennsylvania county can nominate a farmer for this award. Nominees should be submitted to the USDA Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Office in each county. County winners must be sent to the State ASCS office by June 6th.

According to Miles, the state judging committee will meet on June 8th to begin the selection process.

Judges for the 1988 top conservation farmer, in addition to Miles, are William Hunt and Richard Vannoy, PA Rural Development Committee, Bill Adams, Pennsylvania Farmers Association, Benda Shambaugh, State Grange, Bill Sturgis, Pennsylvania Farmers Union and Patricia Devlin, Pennsylvania Association of Conservation District Directors.

The state winner will be entered in national competition. From the state winners, 10 finalists will be selected. The finalists and their spouses will receive an expense-paid trip to Washington, D.C. to attend the national awards program in the fall. Three national conservation farmers will be selected and each will receive a $1,000 cash award at a special ceremony in Washington.

40,000 People Attend Maryland Sheep Festival

WEST FREINDSHIP, MD — After several days of drenching rain, the weatherman smiled, sent down glorious sunshine for the two days of the 15th annual Maryland Sheep and Wool Festival May 7 and 8 and enticed more than 40,000 people to the Howard County Fairgrounds. "This was at least 10,000 more than attended last year's event," according to Mary E. F. Streaker, chairman.

Several seminars on subjects varying from record keeping to selection and use of wool attracted attentive audiences, according to Streaker, who added that the purpose of the festival is to educate as well as entertain and to bring together producers and consumers for their mutual benefit. She emphasized that planning already is underway for next year's May 6 and 7 affair, and she welcomes suggestions and volunteer workers. It will be held at the same location and admission and parking continue to be free.

Many crafts persons have signed contracts for booths, some reserving double the space occupied this year.

So many sheep were entered in competition that judge Dr. Gary Ricketts, University of Illinois, took a brief dinner break and returned to the ring to finish Saturday's schedule. "I've been told," said Streaker, "that this was the largest Romney show in the country." Indeed, Romneys dominated both the shows and the sale. A total of 697 sheep were entered in the six divisions by 69 exhibitors. Dr. Ricketts commented favorably on the quality of the sheep.

Supreme champion ram was a Columbia shown by David Cook, Ohio. Supreme champion ewe was a Corriedale exhibited by Babylon Farm, Connecticut. Premier exhibitor honors in the various shows went to Randy Irwin, Maryland, Border Leicester; Sarah Ruppert, Maryland, Corriedale; Zachmann Family, New Jersey, Columbia; Cindy Bankhead, Maryland, Romney; Morehouse Farm, New York, white wool, and Roger Dudik, Pennsylvania, natural colored.

Twenty-three sheep were auctioned on Sunday — all had been shown and placed by the judge. Top seller was a Romney ewe lamb consigned by Sandy Sheble-Hall, Massachusetts, going to John and Jean Woodward, Maryland, for $400. Last year's top seller also was a Romney which sold for $350. The sheep posted an average of $193.26.

In the fleece competition Babylon Farm was again the winner, taking champion for white fleeces with a Corriedale clip which sent on to be named grand champion. Janet McPeck, Michigan, exhibited a natural colored Border Leicester fleece for champion in the natural colored division. Last year she exhibited the grand champion fleece. There were 266 fleeces entered.

Sheep dogs and shearing, two of the most popular events, were attractions for young and old. Nathan Mooney, Pennsylvania, put the Border Collies through their paces both days and Charles Swaim, Iowa, former international shearing champion, demonstrated the skill that keeps him in demand for exhibitions all over the country. He gave tips on shearing technique to visiting shearers and, with David Greene, judged the professional shearing contest. Eight competed and winner was Jeff Traver, New York.

Lisa Harkins, Harford County, was crowned lamb and wool queen. Her court will be princesses Karren Mullen, Frederick County; Robin Lawrence, Baltimore County, and Jennifer Hagerty, Montgomery County.

George M. Heilman, Owings Mills, Md., out-cooked nine women to win first place in the grand lamb cook-off. His Indonesian lamb with cold peanut sauce was judged best.

A total of 168 entries were received from 67 persons in the skein and garment competition. Awards were: best Maryland wool producer, Triple R Farm; best Maryland skein, Celeste Hardy; best Maryland article, Celeste Hardy; best skein, Suzanne Grimes; best woven article, Paula McKeever; best in show, Paula McKeever.

Ten teams competed in the sheep to shawl contest, with first place going to Waterford Weavers from northern Virginia. Second was Shear Madness, Washington, D.C. third, Dream Weavers, Hampstead, and fourth, Moonspinners, Washington, D.C. The winning shawl brought $265 at auction. Average price for all 10 was $80 each.

Twenty consigned 73 feeder lambs, which sold at an average of $95. Champion lamb was consigned by Troy Ness, Pennsylvania, and sold for $160. The reserve champion, shown by Melissa Walker, Pennsylvania, brought $105. Both were purchased by Randy and Chris Mullinix, Woodbine.

Sixteen junior spinners entered yarn, with top honors going to Tracy Henderson, Pennsylvania.

Raffle winners were: first, Cyndi Stallings; second, Stephanie and Linda Healy; third, Robert Miller; fourth, Nancy Krivanek. All but the last winner reside in Maryland. Ms. Krivanek is from Pennsylvania. Two of the prizes were the champion and reserve champion carcass lambs. Champion carcass was won by Dick and Darlene Olson, Pennsylvania, who were winners last year as well. Reserve champion went to Robert Dinsmore, Maryland.

Robert also won first prize in the poster contest, meat division. His theme: "the Orioles aren't winning because they don't eat enough lamb." Other winners were: wool, Jennifer Bash, Pennsylvania, and breed, Becky Cartwright, Maryland.

Forty three photographs were entered by 18 persons. Best color award went to Barbara Starkey, Maryland, and the black and white award went to Susan Elkins, West Virginia.

In the 4-H and FFA sheep judging competition the high junior team came from Cumberland County, Pennsylvania. Members were Stacy Suffel, Amy Jones and Eric Berkheimer. High individual was Tom Enoff of Carroll County. The high senior team came from Howard County, with brother and

Bush Hog Introduces Economical Cutter

SELMA, AL — Bush Hog's new 2512 rotary cutter is an economical 11½ -foot wide design that will clip up to seven acres per hour.

"Cost control is vital to farm profits when maintaining both set-aside land and pasture," said Robert O. Moore, vice president, sales. "The 2512 provides economy, durability and the width needed to do the job fast."

The 2512's three-spindle design, high blade-tip speed and three-inch overlap provide smooth cutting in heights from 2 to 11½ inches. The blades can reach a speed of 14,400 feet per minute at 540 rpm and 16,300 feet per minute at 1,000 rpm. It will cut material up to an inch in diameter. The driveline is protected by a slip clutch.

The deck is formed from 11-gauge, high-strength steel and has a band depth of eight inches with 10-gauge reinforcement plates on the side skirts. Seven-gauge baffles welded to the underside of the deck help distribute cuttings evenly. The gearbox stand runs across the entire width of the deck for added strength. The axle is bolted to the strongbacks and the axle arms have a spring-type shock-absorber action.

The flexible top link on lift models allows the unit to follow ground contours closely with both standard and quick hitch. Dual axles available on pull models improve flotation on sandy or marshy land. The 2512 also is available as a semi-mount model.

For further information, contact Bush Hog, Dept. 2512-NR, P.O. Box 1039, Selma, AL 36702-1039.

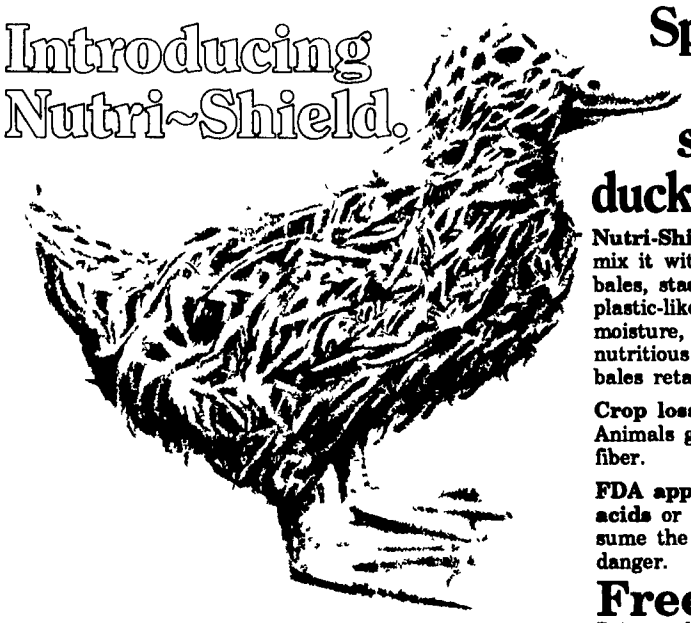
Introducing Nutri~Shield.



Spray it on forage crops and they shed water like a duck's back.

Nutri-Shield comes in powder form. You mix it with water and spray it on your bales, stacks or cubes. It dries to a resilient, plastic-like coating that shields the crop from moisture, inhibits mold and rot, saves nutritious alfalfa leaves and helps bit, round bales retain their shape.

Crop losses are significantly reduced. Animals get more palatable feed, protein and fiber.

FDA approved Nutri-Shield contains no acids or harmful chemicals. You could consume the ingredients in Nutri-Shield without danger.

Free Nutri-Shield Demonstration Kit and Informative Brochure Plus Price and Discounts.

Nutri-Shield (Patent Pending) is manufactured in the farming community of Courtland, Kansas. Population 377.

Spray equipment is available through your Nutri-Shield dealer.

Terrapro with PTO.

The Yamaha Terrapro is the world's first ATV with power-take-off (PTO) . . . a 1" diameter shaft that runs directly from the Moto-4 engine to power Yamaha's new mowers and sprayers. This fully shielded PTO shaft revolves at 1000-2000 rpm, generating big power to drive rough-cut and finish mowers or liquid spraying systems.

Come in today to see our Terrapro Moto-4 and the Terrapro System mowers and sprayers (plus a line up of new attachments). We'll be happy to show you all about PTO and all about ATV.

Proof of Purina Performance

The Purina 4 Square Program For Profits

Good Breeding	Careful Sanitation
Sound Management	Good Feeding

These are just a few of our valued customers who were gracious enough to comment on their experience with Purina Products, Programs, and Purina dealer personnel. We wish these 5 farms the best in the coming years!

1. TIM NOWLIN, N&N FARMS, WARRIORS MARK, PA (86 COWS)
"Since we've been on Purina our cows have been in better body condition. The cows have had higher peaks with more persistence after peak. Our local Purina dealer gives us timely feeding programs. We've been able to fine tune our new TMR with the versatility of Purina products, depending on our needs."
"Purina Calf Startena and Nurse Chow have improved our calves growth rate and given them a slicker coat."
"I really enjoy working with my Purina dealer and representative."

2. GENSIMORE FARMS, TYRONE, PA (100 COWS)
"Palatability of Purina's 38% pellets has been excellent. The feed isn't fine and stays together when we feed it in the parlor. We get good service from Purina personnel. They're always available when we need them."
"Also, the Purina Puridine Teat Dip does a great job."
"Our cows do as well as can be expected considering our feeding situation and set up."

3. BOB OLIVER AND FAMILY, OLIVER FARMS, SPRUCE CREEK PA. (165 COWS)
"The cows are milking very well. They eat the Purina 38% better than any other feed we've fed in the parlor. Sometimes our high producers don't eat as well as we would like, but their intake is still better than on previous products. Our local Purina farm consultant does a nice job on working with our cows."

4. CHARLES SCHILLING & FAMILY, LOCUST LANE FARM, PETERSBURG, PA (90 COWS)
"The high-fat Maxi Tech has helped us in milk production since February. Overall we have been pleased, and with our new computer feeder, the pellets have saved us money. We are making progress as time goes on."

5. DAVE MOYER AND FAMILY, WOODBURY, PA (60 COWS)
"We're very satisfied with performance of the cows on Purina feed. Palatability is excellent — cows really dig into it especially in our computer feeder. Our rolling herd average has increased by about 2200 lbs. in 13 months. Service has been outstanding."
